That means General Motors, increasing shipments to all Europe, with big assembly plants.

It means also Henry Ford's "Ford Limited," $35,000,000 European company, promising to build 200,000 Ford cars a year in England alone, and right away.

GREAT BRITAIN will not find it easy to "repel" that invasion. You can't beat champions with cripples, no matter how many cripples you assemble. American manufacturers will show Britain how to use British labor and materials profitably. Britain should be grateful, instead of talking "invasion."

SCIENTISTS say the "misuse of leisure by the masses" will make necessary the creation of a special governing class that will compel the masses to work more earnestly, use their leisure more intelligently.

IT is a little too soon to judge the masses and their "misuse of leisure." They haven't much leisure now. Until recently they didn't have any, except on Sundays.

Those that really misuse leisure and opportunity are not the poor amusing themselves in their own way, but the rich that have power and lack intelligence or ambition to make good use of it.

DR. ELLIOTT, of New York's Ethical Culture School, says those that teach ethics to children should have "a sense of sin." The teacher, says the learned doctor, "should first convict himself of sin."

JUST how convicting yourself of sin would help your pupils is not clear. Abelard was a good teacher, but otherwise imperfect.

More important than a sense of sin is knowledge of evolution, including the fact that children, if normal, all pass through a state of savagery, even of animalism.

EMOTIONS appear in human babies, in the same order as in the animal ranks, first fear, then anger, then jealousy. The Apache's cruelty is born in them, and the Arab's pilfering.

Whoever expects children to be angels forgets his own childhood.

DR. JOHNSON did not like the saying, "Who rules o'er freemen must himself be free." He said, "You might as well say, 'Who drives fat oxen, must himself be fat.'"

A teacher needs knowledge, and common sense kindness.

WHEN this was written yesterday evening, the Army monoplane, Question Mark, had almost reached 130 hours of continuous flight, surpassing by many hours all records for all kinds of machines, lighter than air included.

THAT is an honor to our Army, our airplane and engine manufacturers, and it is important to future flying for various reasons.

One difficulty in ocean flight has been the great weight of enough gasoline to make the distance.

All remember the difficulty that ocean fliers have had getting off the ground.

Lindbergh shortly after his return told this writer, "The sensible route to Europe is via the Azores, with a stop there to take on fuel, starting out with a lighter load."

QUESTION MARK proves that no stop is necessary. One, or several planes could fly up from the Azores, taking fuel to a trans-Atlantic flier.

Midocean stations might answer the same purpose.

AIR MAIL will be able to go straight through from coast to coast, refueling in full flight, and passengers should soon make the ocean-to-ocean trip inside of 24 hours. Eventually, more powerful fuel and less weight, or wireless power, will solve the problem.

WHEN iron boats, run by steam, were first suggested for trans-Atlantic work, serious engineers said that even if they could cross the ocean, they could not possibly carry enough coal for the trip.

RABBI FEINBURG says science and religion should unite, not quarrel. "Humanity needs a more scientific religion and a more religious science," says the rabbi.

The wise Greek told the tyrant that the world would become happy when kings became philosophers, or philosophers became kings. The tyrant did not like the suggestion.

RELIGION resents any suggestion of change or modification, and quite naturally, since modification is confession of an earthly origin.

The rabbi remembers how the great synagogue in Spain excommunicated Maimonides with many curses because the wise "Rambam," translating Greek philosophy into Hebrew, invented and used new Hebrew words, the old Hebrew language possessing no words to express abstract thought.

MAIMONIDES did not worry. He had a good job as physician to the Khedive of Egypt, a Mohammedan. In Cairo, neither Jews nor Christians could get at him.

RECENTLY Messrs. Ramsay and O'Bannion printed their "Tipton Daily Tribune" on excellent newspaper made from cornstalks. The Tipton Tribune is first in Indiana and second in the world to use the cornstalk paper. The Commercial News, of Danville, Ill., used it first.

These newspapers are to be congratulated on their enterprise, that may render great service to

Nobile Tells Why He Quit Ice First

Italian Recites Experiences In Arctic

IN THE first instalment in the Sun-Telegraph yesterday Gen. Umberto Nobile described the plight of himself and his eight companions, marooned on the Arctic ice, their dirigible Italia torn asunder against an ice hummock, seven other members of the expedition hurled to their doom with the gale-swept gas bag.

Gen. Nobile allowed three of his explorers to leave in search of aid. Three weeks later two Swedish airplanes dropped food and reassuring messages to them.

To the base ship at King's Bay Nobile radioed fragmentary messages urging a speedy rescue. And then he turned over in his mind the puzzle of the order in which he thought his party should be rescued.

Who should be rescued first? Who—and again the planes droned overhead. Now Nobile tells why he was the first to leave the island of ice:

ROME, Jan. 7.—It was a moment of great excitement. We guessed it was the Swedes coming to take us. Dragging myself on the ice, I also went out of the tent followed by Cecioni. Now the rhythm of the motors reached us clearly, cheering us like sweet music.

Two aeroplanes came towards us. I gave the order' "Make smoke."

The smoke rose dense and black. The two aeroplanes circled over us. They had perceived us.

"Viglieri and Biagi," I ordered, "you two go quickly to the landing ground and place the signals for landing. Hurry up! Run!"

Run! It was a word.

In a straight line between our pieces of ice to the ground was perhaps 160 yards, but to do it in a short time needed uncommon acrobatic skill. Here and there crevices, sometimes hidden under the snow, masses of ice to get over, a little canal of small ponds to cross by using blocks of ice as rafts, which often threatened to capsize under the weight of the person.

Viglieri and Biagi, who had also gone that way many times, would have been very clever if they reached the landing ground in a quarter of an hour.

I saw them moving in the distance. Meanwhile the aeroplanes

Tenn. Teacher Cited In Evolution Case

JAMESTOWN, Tenn., Jan. 7.—(AP.)—Prof. Elmore Gentry, principal of the Clark Range High School, this county, has been cited to appear before the Fentress County Board of Eduation January 11 to answer the charge of teaching evolution in the school, contrary to Tennessee's famous anti-evolution statute, under which John T. Scopes was convicted at Dayton a few years ago.

Rosenbaum Co., Frank and Seder Deny Site Sale

Rumors that negotiations by a theatrical corporation for a new Pittsburgh theater site involved the property of the Rosenbaum Company and the department stores of Frank & Seder were denied today.

"I will give $100,000 to charity if any theatrical syndicate takes over our property," said L. A. Behr, president of the Rosenbaum Company.

"For several weeks we have paid no attention to these reports, but they are becoming so persistent and so absurd that it is necessary to announce to the public that there is nothing in them insofar as we are concerned."

J. H. Frank, president of Frank & Seder, was just as emphatic in his denial that any deal involving their stores had ever been negotiated. He added that his firm had no intention of negotiating for the sale of the property and that any rumor involving his stores were without foundation.

U.S. TEST PLANE NEAR DISASTER REFUELING

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7.—The record-breaking flight of the Army endurance plane, 'Question Mark,' came near disaster today when refueling plane No. 1 struck an air pocket and dropped to within 3 feet of the big Fokker.

The refueling plane was in charge of Capt. Ralph Hoyt.

Maj. Carl Spatz, flight commander, handling the nozzle of the gasoline hose, was obliged to hurriedly duck into the cabin of the 'Question Mark' to avoid being injured.

MOTOR REPAIRED

The danger of motor failure overcome by midair repairs and replacements, the Question Mark was still in the air at 9:26 a. m. today, having flown continuously, at that time, exactly 146 hours since its takeoff on New Year's Day.

With all duration records in aviation tucked under their belts, the crew of five men, commanded by Maj. Carl Spatz, still refused to rest content. They were determined to keep the giant Fokker aloft until the three motors, not they, become completely exhausted.

MOTOR TROUBLE BEATEN

As the brown and gold plane circled over the field throughout the night, the hope that the ship's daring mechanic, Sergt. Roy Hooe, had restored the weakening motors to

Jaworski Requests Early Execution

"Doctor in to see me and says that I'm sane. Can't you move up the date of my execution?"

Such is the message which Paul Jaworski, condemned "Flat Head" gangster, has prepared for Gov. Fisher, requesting early execution. The message, it is understood, is being held up by jail authorities until Dr. E. E. Mayer has made his official report to the Governor on the question of Jaworski's sanity.

Church Gary Built Destroyed by Fire

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—The Gary Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church of Wheaton, Ill., erected by the late Elbert H. Gary and endowed by him in his will, was destroyed by fire early today. An overheated furnace was blamed. The loss was estimated at $225,000. The church was erected in 1909 in memory of Mr. Gary's father and mother.

A cold wave, labeled zero or below, is swooping down on Pittsburgh, the weather bureau announced. By nightfall Pittsburgh will be in the grip of the coldest weather of the season, it was predicted.

Out of the Northwest, where subzero temperatures ruled, came a blast that is sweeping with tremendous force and already it has made itself felt sharply in this vicinity and started the mercury on its descent.

Warnings have been issued to rail and river interests to prepare for the coldest weather of the season. Shippers of perishable foodstuffs have been advised of the rapid approach of the cold wave, and river interests have been advised to prepare for frozen streams and to moor their craft accordingly.

The cold spell is not scheduled for a considerable stay. By tomorrow afternoon, it is believed, the blast will have spent itself and slowly rising temperatures will prevail.

Contrary to expectations the cold weather did not arrive Sunday night. It was early Monday morning before the temperatures started a sharp descent.

The cold blast originated in the Plains States, where below zero temperatures ruled. Duluth, with 22 below, had a wind velocity of 28 miles. St. Paul, reported 16 below, and Davenport, Iowa, 10 below. Chicago had 7 below. About 500 homeless men were given shelter in police stations.

Kansas City experienced the coldest weather of the season when the mercury dropped to four degrees above zero in mid-morning. There was one death due to cold weather.

In Iowa the lowest mark was 23 below zero at Ledges Park, near Boone. Webster City, another Northern Iowa place, reported 20 below. It was below zero throughout the state.

New York and the entire Atlantic seaboard were hit with a strong gale doing heavy damage to shipping, dispatches stated.

U. S. Seizes $100,000 Blackmer Securities

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—A second levy of $100,000 of bonds belonging to Harry M. Blackmer, missing Teapot Dome witness, was made today by United States Marshal Edgar C. Snyder, acting under a District of Columbia Supreme Court decision holding Blackmer in contempt for his refusal to testify.

Lava From Volcano Sets Forests Afire

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—A dispatch to La Nacion from Santiago, Chile, today said that torrents of burning lava from the volcano Calbuco had set fire to nearby forests. Rivers are swollen and carrying dead fishes, lava and trees.

Livingston Job Transferred

With Murray Livingston's appeal to retain his job as chief inspector of weights and measures pending, the Civil Service Commission today exempted that office from civil service rules.

Livingston recently was discharged by Mayor Charles H. Kline and appealed to the commission for a hearing. Last Friday the commission held a hearing on the matter of reclassification of the job. A decision was reserved until today.

At the hearing Attorney Charles B. Prichard, representing Livingston, protested changing the classification of the job, at least until a decision was reached on his client's appeal from the discharge.

Today's action paves the way for the dismissal of Livingston by the Mayor should the Civil Service Commission order his reinstatement.

8,000 CHILDREN JOIN HUNT FOR STOLEN LAD

ORRVILLE, O., Jan. 7.—One of the biggest posses ever organized in the history of crime here or perhaps anywhere is in full cry this afternoon in an effort to locate the body of 4-year-old Melvin Horst, who dropped into oblivion two days after Christmas near his home here.

Eight thousand school children here and in the vicinity were dismissed from school early today with instruction to search Wayne County in an attempt to locate the body of the missing boy.

The children have been divided into groups, each group detailed to search the countryside about its own particular school. Boy Scouts are taking the lead in the hunt.

BELIEVE BOY DEAD

Detective Ora Slater said today he believes the youngsters will come across the remains of their missing playmate. This new attempt to solve the mystery also indicates Wayne county officials now are convinced the Horst boy is dead.

Sentiment against the five members of the Elias Arnold family, held in the county jail at Wooster to await arraignment before the grand jury on charges of child stealing, has reached alarming proportions. And there are as many theories as there are threats. The ashes found in the Arnold furnace Saturday have not yet been analyzed to determine if they contain parts of human bones.

WANT ASHES ANALYZED

Dr. Jacob C. Patterson, newly-elected coroner, has advised a chemical analysis be made of the bones and ashes found in the Arnold furnace.

Dr. Alonzo C. Smith, another local physician who consulted with Dr. Patterson on the ashes declared he is firmly convinced that the bulk of the bone fragments came from animals.

Arthur Arnold, 17, one of the suspects, was arraigned in Probate Court today, on request of former Prosecutor Mougey, who has been retained as special assistant to prosecute the case. This was done to permit his indictment, county officials said. He pleaded "not guilty."

Thomas Johnston, Jr., 11, was questioned by the county prosecutor relative to the disappearance of a subpena served on the boy's father. The father was subpenaed to appear in Wooster and the boy said he did not want his father to go, so he took it from his pocket. The boy is said to have told of conversations he had with relatives of the Arnolds now under arrest, who threatened him with a bread and water diet if he told anything about the case.

EXPLOSION SHATTERS PLANT

Ten men were injured when a huge still in the Pittsburgh Transformer plant of the Allis-Chalmers Company, Columbus and Preble avenues, exploded at 2:45 p. m.

The side of one iron-clad building was ripped out and the debris hurled into Magnolia street.

Charles Kelly, William Marks and Albert Dobber were rushed to St. John's hospital. Patrols and ambulances carried other victims to the Presbyterian and Allegheny General hospitals.

A chemical being heated in a still exploded due to high pressure, it was stated.

Kelly, who resides on Westmar street, was working under the still when it exploded. The tank pinned him to the floor. Dobber was injured attempting to rescue Kelly, the top of the tank falling on him.

Courthouse Burns, 2 Firemen Killed

LIMA, O., Jan. 7.—(AP.)—Two firemen were killed today when part of the roof of the burning Lima County Courthouse fell, burying them. They were Capt. John Wolfe and Fireman John Fisher. The fire started presumably from a blow torch being used to thaw frozen pipes. Although firemen are confident of saving the sheriff's residence and jail, adjoining the courthouse, prisoners in the county jail were taken out at noon and lodged in the city jail until danger is past.

Mine Accidents Cause 2 Deaths

Two coal miners died yesterday in hospitals of injuries suffered in accidents in nearby mines. Charles Harbuck, 38, of Library, died in Mercy Hospital of internal injuries sustained Friday when struck by falling pipe in the Montour mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company at Library. Samuel Pribanick, 37, of Richeyville, succumbed in the South Side Hospital from hurts received in a fall of slate in a mine in California.

Radio Commission Ignores Blue Laws

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—There will be no blue laws governing Sunday radio broadcasting, so far as the Radio Commission is concerned. Louis G. Caldwell, general counsel of the commission, ruled today that the commission has no power under the law to restrict Sunday broadcasting to religious music and oratory as asked by the Lord's Day Alliance.

Harvard Grid Ace To Tackle Sharks

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 7.—(AP.)—Tack Hardwick, an all-time ace in Harvard's football history, is to tackle the greatest and rarest of sharks, the rhinodon, or whale shark. He is going to the Galapos archipelago in his steam yacht with Mal Logan, Harvard quarter when Tack was end and back, and others.

CITY BENCH VACANCY FILLED

City Council today elected Henry Oliver Evans city controller to fill the vacancy caused by the death of John H. Henderson and confirmed two appointments of Mayor Charles H. Kline—Leo D. Rothenberg as police magistrate and Dr. Charles M. Maits as director of the health department.

Dr. Maits was given unanimous approval by the nine members of Council. The vote on confirmation of Rothenberg was 7 to 2, President James F. Malone and Charles Anderson voting in the negative. No comment was made.

Rothenberg's appointment came as the aftermath of an upheaval caused by charges of former Magistrate John J. Verona, Hill political leader, who accused police of being in league with the underworld. His charges resulted in his dismissal, a county grand jury probe and filing of charges on the grand jury's recommendation against more than 50 alleged liquor violators and racketeers.

Evans, long a member of the Allegheny County bar, will serve as Controller until the general election next November. He was instrumental in organizing the Pittsburgh Bureau of Governmental Research and is chairman of the organization.

ADMITTED TO BAR 1897

He was born in Hazelwood in 1873 and was educated in the Pittsburgh schools, Bethany College and the University of Michigan. He was admitted to the bar in 1897. His father, Cadwallader Evans, was a member of the old Pittsburgh Council continuously for 23 years, representing the old Twenty-third Ward, and his uncle, James Evans, was a County Commissioner.

Evans is a grandson of the late Henry W. Oliver.

He lives at 1647 South Negley avenue. He was married to Louise Straub in 1901. They have two children.

Clem Shaver Wins $251,853 in Suit

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Jan. 7.—(AP.)—A jury in County Court today awarded Clem Shaver, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, $251,853.85 against the Consolidation Coal Company. Shaver had sued for $400,000, alleging that amount was due as commission in the sale of coal land.

Indict 3 in 'Hex' Murder at York, Trial Started

YORK, Pa., Jan. 7.—(AP.)—The trial of John H. Blymyer, 32-year-old reputed "witch doctor," for the murder of another purveyor of "pow-wowism," got under way rapidly here today. In less than two hours five jurors had been selected.

Blymyer was being tried separately, his two alleged accomplices, Wilbert G. Hess, 18, and 14-year-old John Curry, awaiting disposition of his case before being placed on trial. The three are charged with slaying Nelson D. Rehmeyer, North Hopewell Township farmer, who, like Blymyer, was known to give "pow-wow" treatments.

They are alleged to have killed Rehmeyer during a scuffle when he resisted their efforts to obtain a lock of his hair in order to break a "spell" he was supposed to have cast on the family of Hess. Rehmeyer was choked, his neck being tied with a cord, and when all signs of life had disappeared his body was bound to a chair and set afire.

Indictments charging all three of the defendants with "malice aforethought" were returned by the York County grand jury shortly after the convening of court. All three entered pleas of "not guilty" and then a petition for a separate trial for Blymyer was granted by the court.

DEMPSEY TO CARRY OUT WORK RICKARD PLANNED

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 7.—Jack Dempsey will not enter the boxing ring again but will "pick up where Rickard left off and devote my time entirely to promotion," according to a statement the former heavyweight champion made today to James M. Lynch, Jacksonville hotel man.

"Dempsey told me that if Tex Rickard had lived he would have fought the winner of the Stribling-Sharkey bout," said Lynch, "but added that now since Rickard is gone, he will pick up where Rickard left off.

"It can be said officially that Dempsey will never fight again. He told me so yesterday while we waited to start North."

Lynch joined Dempsey here when the latter passed through en route to Miami a few days ago. He long has been a close friend of the former champion.

The statement bears out a previous assertion made by Dempsey shortly after Rickard died.

"I will return to Miami Beach from New York right after the funeral," Dempsey said. "Then we will carry out the plans and ideas that Rickard created."

"We," friends said, meant Walter Fields, brother of the comedian, W. C. Fields, and a close personal friend of both Dempsey and Rickard.

The Rickard funeral train was rushing north today. On it were Dempsey, Fields, Steve Hannagan, Rickard's personal representative at Miami Beach, and Mrs. Rickard.

The funeral will be Wednesday in New York.

WIFE, BABE MURDERED; YOUNG HUSBAND HELD

BLAIRSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 7.—Mrs. Hattie Kinnan, 27, and her daughter, Claire, 14 months, were murdered as they slept in their Black Lick home early today.

Five hours later John S. Kinnan 27, husband and father, confessed the double murder, police said, and was lodged in the Indiana County jail.

HUSBAND GIVES ALARM

At 5 o'clock this morning Kinnan ran from his home and summoned neighbors, saying an unidentified man had entered the house while he was in the cellar getting coal and had shot his wife and daughter. The child was dead before a physician arrived, and Mrs. Kinnan died a few hours later in Indiana Hospital.

County and state police questioned Kinnan, who said his wife and daughter had slept in a front room last night on account of the cold.

CONFESSION CLAIMED

He said he went to the cellar for coal and while there heard two shots and then the slamming of the door. When he entered the room, he said, he found the two dead.

After questioning, Kinnan is alleged to have admitted the killings and to have led officers to the cellar where the revolver was found.

Kinnan said he shot his wife and daughter because of domestic troubles which had preyed on his mind for two years.

FEDERAL AND STATE DRY HEADS TO HOLD SESSION HERE

TEAM WORK AIM IN RUM CHASING

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—In an effort to establish closer working relations between federal and state prohibition enforcement officials, all states attorneys and district judges in the western district of Pennsylvania have been asked to join in an important conference to be held in Pittsburgh early in March.

Announcement of the conference was made here by Senator David A. Reed, of Pittsburgh, following a visit to Washington of Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington, of the Western Pennsylvania-West Virginia district.

PENNINGTON PLAN

Pennington, it is reported, is the instigator of the plan. Already the has laid it before federal prohibition officials here, including Dr. James M. Doran, national prohibition commissioner, with the result that it has received full sanction in Washington.

Deputy Prohibition Commissioner Alt Offeldt announced all regional administrators had been asked to hold conferences with United States Attorneys and high state officials with a view to tightening up enforcement and to arrange a division of responsibility.

Senator Reed, it was stated, has accepted an invitation to deliver one of the principal addresses before the conference. Also he has promised to bring with him, if possible, the new United States Attorney General to be appointed under the administration of President-elect Hoover. Other addresses are expected to be made by Attorney General Baldridge, of Pennsylvania, and United States District Attorney John D. Meyer, of Pittsburgh.

PROSECUTORS COMING

Invitations have already been sent out to states attorneys in the western district and twenty-four out of twenty-five have signified their intention to participate, it was announced. District judges are now being approached on the subject.

While no date was set for the conference, it was stated that it will come during the first part of March, or shortly after the new Hoover administration is settled in office.

PLANE NEAR DISASTER

regularity grew into an assurance. All three motors were running smoothly after the one hundred and forty-fourth hour.

When the motors recuperated from their spasmodic ailment, optimism replaced anxiety on the part of the watches on the ground.

There was no saying how much longer the Question Mark would soar over the field. Airport officials predicted it may be a few more days before the great plane is forced to earth.

CREW SENSES END

Following a night and morning of dogged battling against faltering engines, the crew of the Question Mark admitted the end of the amazing flight was approaching, but never lessened their efforts to keep the ship afloat.

"It looks a lot as though the human being is going to outlast the motors," wrote Maj. Spatz in the log of the plane, dropped to the field.

FORCED LANDING PROBABLE

A forced landing seemed inevitable early today. But the five men in the ship, Maj. Spatz, Capt. Ira C. Eaker, chief pilot; Lieut. Harry A. Halverson, Lieut. Elwood Quesada and Sergt. Hoos, would not surrender.

At that time Maj. Spatz wrote:

"Everything is in readiness for a forced landing. The plane will not hold its altitude on two motors. . . . I believe our hearing has been temporarily affected because to all of us our sight tells us a cylinder is gone, but our hearing tells us nothing."

Girl Unveils Tolstoi Bust of W. H. Hardy

GULFPORT, Miss., Jan. 7.—(AP.)—Miss Micheline H. Hardy, 13-year-old daughter of Lemar Hardy, New York attorney, yesterday unveiled a bronze bust and granite shaft erected here as a memorial to her grandfather, the late Judge William Harris Hardy, founder of Gulfport and Hattiesburg, railroad builder, Confederate soldier, and in later years Circuit judge.

CANAL FULTON, O., Jan. 7.—Six-year-old Danny Oser, riding his pony over the gale-swept hills of Stark County, spread the alarm that the murderer of his father and mother was at large. They had been shot, police say, by a hired man, in a robbery yesterday morning at the Oser dairy farm, two miles from here.

Employed only four days on the farm, the hired man, whose name now is remember, evidently attacked John Oser in the milk house. He was shot through the temple. The sheriff believes Mrs. Oser heard the shot and started to her husband's assistance.

Mrs. Oser was attacked in the living room of the home. She was shot in the head and then clubbed with the butt of a rifle. Three hundred dollars was stolen before the man fled in the Oser family automobile.

LEARN from science that the value of a 150-pound man "on the hoof," as farmers say, assuming that decency would prevent using the fat on the side, is about 98 cents. His body contains enough lime to wash a small chicken coop, a little sugar, enough iron to make a ten-penny nail.

Nearly all the 90 odd elements are in man, but in small quantities.

SOMEBODY thinks he discovered Stradivarius' art of making violins, revealed in a letter written by Stradivarius to a priest in Cremona.

You might find a letter from Phidias describing his method of making statues, but that wouldn't create a Venus of Milo. The Stradivarius letter won't produce Stradivarius violins, unfortunately.

IN 1928, New York City spent for building $65,000,000 more than in 1927.

What will happen if New York ever has a real estate boom? New York City land has sold for as high as $30,000,000 an acre, but that is cheap for some corners.

MELLON'S FOES MOVE TO GET HIM OUSTED

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—As President-elect Herbert Hoover prepared for a series of discussions today with Republican leaders over the formation of the new cabinet, reports indicated serious objections may be interposed against the reappointment of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon.

The President-elect called at the White House early today and discussed his recent South American trip with President Coolidge. It was understood the President regarded the trip as highly successful and believed the good will it had done was reflected in the recent Pan-American arbitration conference here.

The President and Mr. Hoover were together nearly three-quarters of an hour.

The President-elect had a long conference with Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, president pro tem. of the Senate, and Representative Snell, of New York, who constitute the congressional committee on inauguration arrangements.

After the conference Representative Snell said the inaugural plans, so far as the ceremony at the Capitol building is concerned, will be "practically the same as four years ago."

"Mr. Hoover wants a simple inauguration," said Snell, "but he does not object to the formalities necessary to comply with the importance of the occasion, when the chief executive of 120,000,000 people is inducted into office."

Irvine L. Lenroot, former Senator from Wisconsin, was another caller. He remained with the President-elect for nearly an hour. Senator Edge, of New Jersey, and Senator-elect Kean, of the same state, also called.

Former Senator Lenroot said that the President-elect had entered upon a period of listening to acquaint himself fully with the situation and obtain the ideas of his supporters on a variety of subjects. Senator Edge said that besides paying their respects, he and Mr. Kean had urged the appointment of Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, as Secretary of State.

The President-elect did not go to his S street home for lunch, having his midday meal served to him in his headquarters.

In the case of Mr. Mellon, the opposition to his appointment comes from the Progressive Republican element of the Senate aligned with Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, in his fight to have the Treasury Department head ousted from the Coolidge cabinet. Two resolutions are now pending on the subject, one by Senator Couzens and the other by Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., of Wisconsin, both Republicans.

The opposition to reappointment of the Treasury head, in short, revolves mainly around the long-standing political feud between Secretary Mellon and Senator Couzens.

STRICT WATCH SUGGESTED ON DOPE TRADE

By ROBERT S. THORNBURG.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Urging a more strict control over the world-wide drug traffic under the international opium convention of 1912, the United States Narcotic Control Board, today submitted its formal report to the advisory drug committee of the League of Nations.

The control board, consisting of the secretaries of state, treasury and commerce, declared that "the government must continue to report that there are large quantities of narcotic drugs smuggled into this country," but that dope addiction in United States probably is on the decline.

GREAT SEIZURE MADE

Since the report was prepared millions of dollars' worth of dangerous drugs have been seized in a nation-wide roundup of the so-called ring. This drive, conducted by Col. L. G. Nutt, head of the treasury narcotic division, is probably one of the most noteworthy staged by the government since the Harrison law was passed.

The report said: "The consensus among officers, who may be termed experts as to this field of inquiry, is that the total number of narcotic drug addicts in the United States is decreasing, and that the average age of such addicts is increasing, indicating that few, if any, recruits are being made to the ranks of the habituates and perhaps none of the more youthful."

N. Y. RUM DRIVE HITS TROUBLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—Police Commissioner Grover Whalen's drive against speakeasies, which has resulted in more than 600 raids, with vigorous uses of axes, during his three weeks in office, ran against snags and criticism today.

Police inspectors were summoned to testify before the federal grand jury in Brooklyn because of allegations that there had been bungling in preparing prohibition cases.

Federal Judge Moscowitz, charging the grand jury in Brooklyn, said more than half the prisoners taken before federal commissioners by policemen were discharged because of lack of evidence or because raids were illegal.

The Brooklyn inquiry is under Federal Attorney DeGroot, who resented not being invited to attend a conference on co-operation against rum-selling held by Commissioner Whalen and Charles H. Tuttle, federal attorney for the district that includes Manhattan.

HUNTS SISTER, HIKES FAR

Searching for a sister whom he has not seen for many years, William Moore, 52, a former resident of the South Side, returned to Pittsburgh last night, having hiked here from Anaconda, Mont. His companion on the trip was Maggie, a part Russian wolfhound. The two spent the night in the Forty-third Street Police Station, where police furnished them with a place to sleep and something to eat.

Moore is searching for Mrs. Elizabeth McCombs, who, when last heard from, lived in the vicinity of Parnassus. Moore left Anaconda several several months ago with $300 in his pocket. He stopped at hotels and at other times slept in the open. Upon arrival in Pittsburgh, he found himself penniless.

GARLAND FLAYS TAX CHARGE

Councilman Robert Garland today took a fling at the assertion that Pittsburgh has a high tax rate, which originated in the December National Municipal Review compiled by the Detroit Bureau of Governmental Research.

Comparisons of tax rates between cities are unfair, according to Garland, for the reason that there is no uniform basis upon which they may be made.

The tremendous amount of new buildings in Pittsburgh is sufficient proof that the tax rate here is not high, Garland declared. He said the city is enjoying its greatest boom. It is impossible to state what the city's tax rate on mixed real estate is, for the reason that Pittsburgh has a graded tax law, Garland said.

CHRISTMAS OBSERVED TODAY BY GREEKS HERE

Christmas is being observed today by thousands of Pittsburghers affiliated with the Greek Orthodox Church and the Roman Catholic Church of the Greek Rite, commonly known as the Greek Catholic Church, but recognizing the Pope at Rome as the supreme pontiff.

Communicants of these denominations come for the most part from Balkan and other Eastern European countries where the Julian calendar is used. The Julian calendar is 13 days behind the Gregorian calendar of the United States and Western Europe, which makes today December 25 under the Julian system.

In commemoration of the Savior's birth Bishop Basil Paksch, of the Greek Catholic denomination, celebrated Episcopal mass in the cathedral at Homestead this morning. Bishop Paksch's diocese takes in the whole United States and includes 140 parishes and 145 priests.

Local Greek Orthodox churches, whose members are drawn from Ukraninia, Russia, Serbia, Greece and Syria, celebrated Christmas with midnight services last night and high mass at 10 o'clock this morning.

Taxes Too High, W. Va. Coal Given Up

PHILIPPI, W. Va., Jan. 7.—Rather than pay increased taxes on coal holdings in Barbour County, the Guffey Coal Company, of Pittsburgh, has decided to abandon them to the state.

The coal thus given up is in Barker and Glade districts. The company has decided to retain other holdings in Philippi and Cove districts sending a check for $7,500 to its local attorney, Dellet D. Stemple, for tax payments.

The valuation of the coal abandoned had long been a subject of controversy, and after being carried to the Circuit Court, where the value was reduced, the taxes were again boosted last year.

The coal will be sold by the sheriff for the delinquent taxes.

SMOKE CURB PLAN UP IN COUNCIL

City council will have before it for consideration today the proposal of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters that additional smoke inspectors be appointed to cope with the air poilution nuisance.

Stirred by the assertion that the recent murk has been in part to blame for the prevalence of pneumonia and bad colds, citizens have been besieging councilmen with demands for relief.

The bureau of smoke regulation has jurisdiction only over industrial plants, large apartment houses, railroads and steamboats. Appointment of additional smoke inspectors, if authorized by council, will, therefore, provide only partial relief, it is pointed out.

DWELLINGS BLAMED

Occupants of dwelling houses are blamed for the greater part of the air pollution here. According to Harry B. Meller, chief of the bureau of smoke regulation, 100,000 residence chimneys, over which he has no control, are belching forth smoke in Pittsburgh, as compared with 10,000 industrial stacks. And residence furnaces, Meller states, emit, per ton of coal burned, ten times as much black smoke as power plants.

Commenting on the situation, Dr. George D. Beal, assistant director of the Mellon Institute, which has undertaken an exhaustive investigation of the smoke problem, quoted Samuel W. Parr, president emeritus of the American Chemical Society, as follows:

CITES POOR STOKING

"In the case of the average household or apartment heating unit high heats do not prevail. The mechanical stokers, as well as the liberal combustion spaces, are absent. Moreover, the man of the house or the janitor has other duties to perform, whereupon he fills the combustion chamber to the limit and sets the dampers for a prolonged period of automatic control, during the major part of which period the so-called heater is simply a device for stewing off tars and vapors of inconceivable variety as to composition, odor and filth, for the effective work of polluting the atmosphere. In the very nature of the case such conditions must exist and continue to prevail in any household where raw fuel is fed into the furnace.

"No matter by what name the furnace or the coal is known, by any other name they would smoke just the same. And the worst part of the picture is not fully presented until mention is made that, as a result of exhaustive studies in many congested centers, it has been demonstrated that the major part of the smoke nuisance has its origin in the domestic chimney and in the larger units of the flat and apartment buildings.

URGE USE OF COKE

Council last Monday unanimously passed a resolution introduced by Councilman Robert Garland, requesting householders to burn gas or coke in their furnaces.

Wabash Dividends Ruling Handed Down

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(INS.)—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today decided by a two-to-one vote that holders of preferred A stock of the Wabash Railway Company are entitled to receive dividends for past years before any payments are made to holders of other issues of stock, preferred or common.

The Wabash sent trains into Pittsburgh at one time over the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal Railroad. It lost control of that line many years ago, however, and the name was changed to Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway. The Wabash now has no connection with Pittsburgh.

Egypt May Bargain With Ford for Road

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—The newspaper Siassa says the Egyptian government is examining a proposal of Henry Ford that he construct at his own expense a macadamized road of 250 kilometers length (about 155 miles) anywhere in Egypt and undertake its upkeep, in exchange for which the Egyptian government would allow Ford cars to enter Egypt duty free. An 8 per cent ad valorem duty is paid now on Ford cars imported here, pending enforcement of the new tariff measures in 1930.

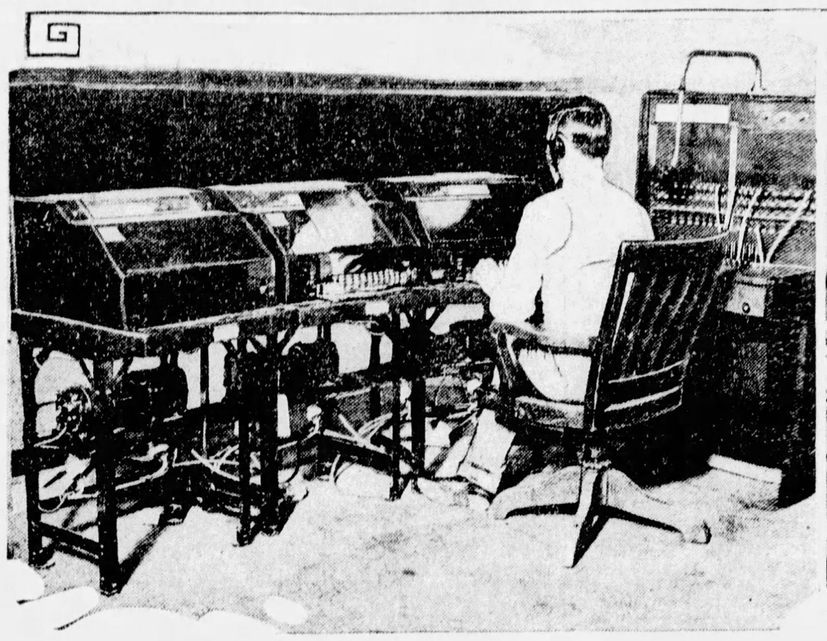
POLICE INAUGURATE NEW SIGNAL SYSTEM HERE TODAY



NEW PITTSBURGH POLICE SIGNAL SYSTEM

Today Pittsburgh police put into operation their new automatic communication system, flashing messages simultaneously into all of the city's 14 police stations. Here E. L. Walker, operator, receives a stolen car description through a telephones headset and is sending it over the machinery beside him to all stations.

SERGT. AL JONES RECEIVES A MESSAGE

COLEMAN WALSH

Police Supt. P. P. Walsh and his assistant, Leo Coleman, send the first message over the system, similar to the automatic telegraph systems used by news services.

HOW MESSAGES WERE FLASHED BEFORE

Before the installation of the system, Operator Jack Lauer would receive a message from one police station and relay it to the others by individual calls, losing much time in cases of fleeing hold-up men.

POLICE TO USE RAPID SIGNAL SYSTEM

The Bureau of Police today will place in operation a new automatic system for transmitting orders and instructions direct from the office of the superintendent of police and detective headquarters to desk sergeants in all police stations throughout the city.

Because of the rapidity with which it operates, the new system will, it is believed, increase the efficiency of the bureau and get police rapidly on the way to the scene of a crime.

16 RECEIVERS

This new method of transmitting orders to precinct stations is known as the telephone-typewriter system.

Sixteen receiving machines have been installed, one in each police station in the city, and four additional sending and receiving machines distributed as follows: One in the office of the superintendent, one at detective headquarters and two in the police signal service operators' room. Later on it is intended to amplify the system with the installation of a radio control board in the police signal operators' room whereby the operator can cut off all stations he desires and transmit directly to one or more.

QUICK TRANSMISSION

The new system means that when a crime has been committed in any part of the city or special orders are to be sent out, the superintendent and inspector of detectives from their offices can forward them simultaneously to every police station at the rate of 60 words a minute.

The receiving set is encased in a glass box at the sergeant's desk. Before a message starts coming in, a bell signals automatically in each police station. Then the typewriter begins typing out its message. Should a sergeant be busy at the time or be out of the room, the message is still there for him on a roll of paper.

Under the old system, a call was first given to the police signal operators and by them transmitted to each police station.

CLARK, WALSH PLEASED

Both Public Safety Director James M. Clark and Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh believe that the new system will increase police and detective efficiency 100 per cent. They contend that it will make for greater speed and accuracy in getting their subordinates into action and hope that it will tend greatly toward talking crime in the city.

Clark and Walsh have been after Council for more than a year for authority to install the telephone-typewriter signal system. Council, after learning its merits, agreed to the installation.

TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR MARRIAGE OUTLINED

Ten commandments, which if followed by prospective brides and bridegrooms, would bring happiness to the homes to be founded, were presented to an audience of young people in the Point Breeze Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. Percival H. Barker last night. They were:

1—Thou shalt consider the matter of ancestry and physical condition. Remember the law of heredity and the vital importance of a healthy body.

2—Thou shalt consider the financial prospects. Resolve not to marry for money but weigh your chances of a livelihood.

3—Thou shalt consider the honor shown to the parental home. Do not choose one whom is unfaithful to father or mother.

4—Thou shalt consider the conception of marriage which is held. Those who are joined in matrimony should regard it as a holy partnership and not merely as an experiment.

5—Thou shalt consider the matter of congeniality. Do not go to the marriage altar with one who seriously differs from you in tastes and interests.

6—Thou shalt consider the quality of disposition. Look for kindliness and amiability, and beware of jealously.

7—Thou shalt consider the strength of home instinct. A husband should be a lover of the home; a wife a real home maker.

8—Thou shalt consider whether or not real love stirs the heart. Such love makes one ready to suffer and sacrifice.

9—Thou shalt consider the matter of moral recitude. Better to live alone than with the unprincipled or the victim of evil habits.

10—Thou shalt consider the attitude which is taken and will likely be taken to Christ and the Church. Thou shalt be ready to contribute religious devotion and church allegiance to the home, and thou shalt be assured that thy partner will be a help and not a hindrance in this regard.

GARDNER SPURS VOTE FRAUD TRIALS

Desiring to clean his slate of all election trials, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner is hurrying up the trials of election boards charged with conspiracy and irregularities during the elections of 1926 and 1927. He said that the first of these trials would be called soon. There have been many postponements in the cases. Two Pittsburgh and four Homestead boards are to be tried, the members having been indicted in February, 1927, after an investigation of irregularities at the general election the preceding November.

In addition to the six boards, there are six other election cases growing out of the 1927 elections. Election officers of the Third, Eleventh and Twelfth districts of the Third Ward; the Twenty-second District of the Eleventh Ward; the Second District of the Twentieth Ward and the Twenty-first District of the Twenty-first Ward are the defendants. They are charged with conspiracy to violate the election laws.

Aviator Perils Life To Save Air Mail

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 7.—(AP.)—An air mail plane, Cheyenne to Omaha, piloted by Norman Potter, 28, crashed east of Fort Crook at 12:48 a. m., Sunday. A gasoline explosion destroyed the plane and three-fourths of the mail. Potter escaped death.

The plane struck a tree in landing and the home of Lee Watson, Jr. The quick action of Watson, a former mechanic at the field, saved Potter, who in a dazed state with a gash in his forehead reentered the burning plane to save the mail.

"I had to fight with him to get him away from the plane," Watson said. "He was too stunned to realized his danger."

D. M. WEIR, STEEL MAN, DIES

With his brother, Edwin T. Weir, president of the Weirton Steel, he established that company, which has plants at Weirton and Clarksburg, W. Va., and at Steubenville.

He helped found the town of Weirton, where the largest of the company's plants is located, and saw it grow from a few houses to the present city of 18,000 population. At one time he was city manager of Weirton.

As a young man he became connected with steel interests in Pittsburgh and 20 years ago came here where he had resided most of the time since.

Surviving in addition to the brother, Edwin T. Weir, are the widow, Frances Weir, and two daughters, Frances and Margaret.

He was connected with numerous other business organizations, occupying at his death the presidency of the Weirton Improvement Company, the Weirton Home Building Company and the Weirton Development Company.

JUGO-SLAV KING TAKES REINS AS DICTATOR

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—King Alexander was virtually dictator of Jugo-Slavia today, having suspended the Constitution and named a non-party cabinet. He formed a non-parliamentary government of military stamp after a futile attempt to reconcile strong party and racial antagonisms with which the parliamentary regime has been split since last June.

He announced that all laws would remain in force until suspended by decree. New laws would be made by decree. The royal order did away with the constitution which the turbulent kingdom of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes has adhered to since June 28, 1921.

The action of the King created a sensation, but it was announced no disturbances occurred.

Although denied their demands for self-government, Croatians were jubilant over the suppression of the parliament where three of their members were murdered. Three members of the Croatian party, which withdrew from the national parliament after the shooting of several of its leaders, were appointed to the new cabinet.

PASTOR RAPS SEWICKLEY "Y" FOR SUNDAY SPORTS

Severe criticism of the Sewickley Young Men's Christian Association for its new Sunday sports and amusement policy was launched by the Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton from the pulpit of the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street, yesterday morning. He also made a plea for a more rigorous enforcement of the Pennsylvania "blue laws," declaring that they are "beneficent, not baneful, and working the highest good to those who labor."

Man Killed, Girl Hurt in Leap Into Creek

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 7.—(INS.)—A man is dead today and a woman is in serious condition as a result of what local authorities believe to have been a premature celebration last night of the old calendar Christmas.

John Curtis, 23, a miner, and Miss Margaret Smith, 20, were found in the icy water of the Stony creek here early today. Miss Smith is said to have told officers that she and Curtis were attending a celebration, were returning home, and had started across the railroad bridge. Curtis pushed her off the bridge and jumped into the water to keep a train from hitting them.

TARIFF CHANGE WORK BEGUN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—The tariff—historic issue in American politics—is before Congress again in concrete form.

The subject, a live one in the recent campaign, was brought to the front by the Ways and Means Committee of the House, whose members were called together today to open hearings on tariff revision. The work begins coincidentally with the settling down for a brief stay in his Washington home of President-elect Hoover, whose administration will see the tedious job completed.

Meanwhile, the stupendous task of readjusting the 1922 Fordney-McCumber tariff act will go forward.

Criticizing the Sewickley Y. M. C. A.'s Sunday sports and amusement policy, Dr. Shelton said: "In conducting sports on Sundays just as on other days, the Y. M. C. A. of Sewickley has departed from the historic position of the organization as a moral and spiritual force. The Y. M. C. A. is an adjunct of the church. It is the churches cooperating in winning young men to Christ and building Christian character. Apart from this, it is simply a club like a score of others, without religious objective or power."

AMUSEMENT NOT AIM

"Amusements have been reckoned not as the end, valuable as they may be, but as a means to an end. They have been the back door, whereas the Sewickley association makes them the front door, consigning religion to a secondary place. In so doing it has forfeited its place of moral and spiritual leadership in the community and has given great comfort to the enemies of the Sabbath.

"On reading the statement that subscriptions have been doubled at the Sewickley "Y" since the introduction of Sunday sports, one hopes that the association has not 'sold out.' A year hence will be a better time to judge the financial effect. If new friends are made in this way, old and better ones will be lost."

CALLS FOES GREEDY

In his plea for a more rigorous enforcement of the Sunday "blue laws," Dr. Shelton declared:

"The Sunday laws of Pennsylvania should be retained. They have never been enforced to the detriment of anybody. They are beneficent, not baneful, working the highest good to those who labor. Their repeal is sought in order that the amusement and sporting interests may profit through a commercialized Sunday. Surely six days of jazz are enough. Let us have one of quiet. Without it, this modern speed will break down society and drive us all mad."

SHOWING PROCESS TO GEORGIA BINDER

It's easy, Prof. Wagner tells Georgia Binder, of the physics department, as he puts a cylinder of glass over a flame in his process of making it. He made a three-masted schooner when he "felt like playing one day." His father and grandfather were glass blowers in Germany.

GIRL ACCUSES CAFE OWNERS

Michael DePietro and Alex Napolitan, proprietors of a restaurant at 427 Third avenue, were held for court in Morals Court yesterday after it was testified that Eva Fuge, 17, of 1086 Brownsville road, had been attacked in the restaurant late Saturday.

The Fuge girl, with Irene Lippard, of Castle Shannon, and Catherine Daniels, of Burgettstown, is said to have gone to the restaurant with Frank Cuda, of Overlook street; Tony Bornardino, of Methel street, and Frank Valueda, of Methel street.

Magistrate Brandon was informed the raid had been made on the complaint of Mrs. Eva Fuge, the girl's mother, after the girl had been brought home injured. Taxi Driver Nurse To Stray Bow-Wows

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—A Queens borough taxi driver makes a hobby of befriending stray dogs. He picks them up in his car and turns them over to the Ellin Prince Speyer Animal Hospital where homes are found them. John Hause, the driver, says he does it because dogs are very nearly human. His average is a dog a week.

POLICEMEN'S PENSIONS LIKELY TO BE RAISED

An effort soon will be made to increase the amount of pensions paid to retired policemen of the city, it was indicated yesterday at a meeting of the Veterans' Police Association.

The pensions now range from $60 monthly for patrolmen to $126 for retired superintendents. With more than $1,000,000 in the treasury, it is believed that higher pensions can be paid.

Two members of the veterans' organization were elected to the board of directors of the Police Pension fund Association yesterday. Eight years ago the veterans began a fight to have representation on the board that handles the money from which the pensions are paid. Councilman Robert J. Alderdice, former director of the Public Safety Department, and Louis Leff, former head of the detective bureau, are the directors elected.

Leff resigned as president of the veterans to represent them on the board of the pension fund association. Harry S. Fowler was chosen to succeed Leff. Detective Lieut. Thomas Malone was named vice president to succeed Fowler.

Cafe Bombed; Two Passersby Injured

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Two passersby were injured, one of them perhaps fatally, yesterday, when a bomb shattered a cafe at Kedzie avenue and Sixteenth street. Irving Brady, 42, suffered a fracture of the skull. His companion, Fred Evans, 38, was cut and bruised. William Sullivan, owner of the cafe, was inside when the bomb exploded, but was not injured.

WOMAN ROBBED OF SAVINGS BY BOGUS 'DRYS'

Mrs. Katie Koscho, 65, widow living in a one-story frame dwelling at Brown way and Broadway, Carnegie, was robbed of $600, her life savings, by two pseudo-prohibition agents last night, Carnegie police say.

The pair, impersonating Federal officers and flashing badges, entered the woman's home and searched it. After finding a quart of whisky, police say, the men told the woman she was under arrest and to arrange a bond for a hearing before a justice of the peace.

Mrs. Koscho took $600 from her trunk, and was preparing to accompany the "raiders," when they snatched the money from her hand, jumped into an automobile containing two men, and escaped.

'CAUGHT IN ACT,' HELD AS THIEF

Answering a report that a burglar was robbing the meat market of John Ondek, 3627 McClure avenue, Woods Run, early today police from the Woods Run station arrested Anthony Temezko, 20, of 32 Carter way, in the act, they say, of jimmying a transom.

When the call was received at the station house, Lieut. Robert McIntosh, and Patrolman Leo Fitzgerald and Nicholas Battis leaped into an emergency car and sped to the store, arriving in time they say, to catch Temezko at his work.

THEATER BANDITS SHOOT WAY OUT WITH $2,500

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—Eight robbers invaded William Fox's Folly Theater in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn last night, held up the cashier and treasurer, obtained approximately $2,500, and made their escape under the fire of several policemen.

The eight men drove up in front of the theater at 11 o'clock just before the end of the show. Two remained in the car, three more stationed themselves on the sidewalks with drawn guns and the other three walked into the theater, past the ticket taker and into the manager's office.

The manager, Harry Lipkowitz; the treasurer, Samuel Schulphalter, and the cashier, Anna Berger, were all in the room. The three robbers ordered Schulphalter to open the safe, from which they took the money.

Taking the money they started to back out of the theater when Patrolman Max Bloch, who was off duty and viewing the show with his wife, was told by one of the ushers that a holdup was in progress.

He drew his gun and dashed into the lobby, opening fire. He was joined there by the theater watchman and their exchange of shots attracted other policemen.

Before the robbers could get away seven policemen and the special watchman were firing on them.

The robbers' car was found abandoned a mile from the theater a few moments later. It carried 27 bullet holes and there was blood inside, indicating some of the bandits had been wounded. One hundred and fifty dollars in bills was found in the car.

The 1,400 persons in the theater did not learn of the holdup until the firing began.

LAWYER FACES INQUIRY

Charges that Attorney Nathan J. Lippard obtained money from women prisoners in the matron's department at Morals Court and in return promised immunity will be investigated by the Allegheny County Bar Association, Joseph A. Stadtfeld, president of the association, said this morning. The matter will be taken up by Frank C. McGirr, chairman of the association's offense committee.

Several weeks ago Magistrate A. D. Brandon questioned three women in Morals Court and they are alleged to have made affidavits to the effect that they gave money to Lippard in their cell. Lippard is said to have volunteered his services unsolicited and promised to have them freed the next morning at a summary hearing and to stop all newspaper publicity. Because he was late at the hearing, the story came out. When he appeared Brandon made him return the money.

Auto, Street Car Crash; 5 Injured

A woman and her four children were injured when an automobile in which they were riding collided with a street car at Fifth avenue and Smithfield street, yesterday. Mrs. Mary Gustas, 534 Elk street, Buffalo, and her children, Mary, 11; John, 9; Clarence, 7, and Anna, 3, passengers in an auto driven by James Sampson, of Monongahela, suffered bruises and lacerations when the machine crashed with a street car operated by J. A. Malone, of 1711 Fifth avenue. They were treated at the Allegheny General Hospital.

Policeman Arrested When Car Hits Truck

It makes no difference who you are in Neville township, if you violate the law you get arrested. Saturday night Patrolman Frank Bauman arrested a brother officer, Michael C. Shuty, in Grand avenue, when Shuty's automobile struck the rear end of a truck which is said to have been parked without lights. Shuty was released on his own recognizance but will face a reckless driving charge later. Several months ago police raided an alleged gambling house and arrested a township fireman.

Ex-Convict Here Caught in West

Adam Schultz, of the North Side, said to have been a former inmate of the Western Penitentiary, is under arrest in St. Louis, according to word received here by city detectives. He is said to be wanted in this city for burglary on the North Side several years ago. When arrested in St. Louis, he is alleged to have had several watches in his possession. He told police that he was wanted in Pittsburgh and in Beaver Falls, and also for escaping from an Ohio prison. A local detective probably will be sent to return him here.

Mr. Earl McMahon of 91 Rensselaer Ave., Cohoes, N. Y., has a mighty cold job—cutting ice and selling it. He's found REM is best for the coughs he can't help getting.

"IT'S GOOD" said the Paper
"IT'S GOOD" said the Druggist
"YOU BET IT'S GOOD" says Mr. McMahon

"My business is harvesting ice out of the river and selling it wholesale and retail," says Mr. McMahon. "It's pretty cold sometimes when we are cutting ice. Sometimes I come home with a bad cough. I found by experience that REM is the best relief. I saw about REM in the papers and John Kennedy, the druggist on Ontario St. near Park Ave., told me it was good, so I tried it with good results. My wife has given it to our six children and she likes it as well as I do. They like to take it and it certainly does the work."

REM didn't just "happen",--there's 43 years of pharmaceutical experience back of it. We've done the experimenting for you.

MUSIC

BRAHMS TRIO
Y. M. & W. H. A.

The Brahms Trio, Ralph Lewando, violin; Joseph Derdeyn, cello, and Selmar Jansen, piano, gave the second concert of the Chamber Music Society at the Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Association last night. The program comprised the G Major Trio of Mozart, the B Flat Trio of Beethoven, and the "Dumky" Trio of Dvorak, a group of ensemble numbers very well chosen for the occasion, and showing the players at their best.

Since the inaugural concert of the trio last season vast strides have been made in every respect. In matters of precision and general ensemble playing the improvement is especially noticeable. The Mozart was somewhat subdued as if each player were afraid he might outweigh the other, but in the Beethoven the tone increased to beautiful sonority. Mr. Jansen is still the leader with his firm rythms, that never, however, predominate too greatly. One wished often that the cello might assert itself more strongly, not so much for the sake of enrichment of the harmonic structure as for the general design.

There was a good audience and applause was most spontaneous.

Mother of 11 Killed On Way from Church

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 7.—(AP.)—Mrs. Henry Shaffer, 55, mother of 11 children, was killed when the Shaffer car skidded and rolled down an embankment while members of the family were returning from church. Mr. Shaffer, 58, suffered concussion of the brain and shock, and a daughter, Myrtle, 18, also was injured. Two other children escaped unhurt. The machine, a touring car, came to rest in less than a foot of water.

Detective's Auto Stolen Downtown

Detective Lieut. Thomas Malone spent an uncomfortable week-end fretting about his home while the city police and detective force sought his automobile, stolen Saturday night. Malone drove downtown Saturday night and parked his machine in Penn avenue while he went to a show. Upon leaving the show he discovered the theft of his machine.

Stoned, Vagrant Stabs 2 of Gang

Drawing a knife when stones were hurled at him by a gang of men at Forbes and Boyd streets, police say, Pete Lish, 30, "no home," stabbed Joseph Daggott, 29, of 1226 Fifth avenue, and Edward Hickey, 25, of 950 Kirkbridge street, yesterday. Both were treated at Mercy Hospital. Lish was arrested on a suspicious person charge.

1928 TAXES SET HIGHEST MARK IN HISTORY

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Taxes collected by federal, state and local governments the fiscal year ended in 1928 amounted to approximately $8,[illegible], according to estimates [illegible] the National Industrial Conference Board.

Although complete figures for that year are not available, the board said they would exceed the $8,000,000,000 for the fiscal year ended in 1927, the highest amount in any one year in the history of the country up to that time.

EIGHTH OF INCOME

The board said the 1928 taxes represented [illegible] of taxes collected [illegible] country in any one year in the world's history. This is equivalent to nearly 12 per cent of the national income for 1927.

The per capita tax in 1927 was $78.50 as against $[illegible] in 1913, indicating that taxes have increased more rapidly than population.

The total gross expenditures by federal, state and local governments in the fiscal year ended in 1927 was estimated at approximately $12,800,000,000.

STATE DEBTS GROW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Total revenues collected by the governments of the 48 states of the Union during 1927 amounted to $1,708,381,000, and the expenditures for the same year in operating and maintaining their general departments totaled $1,720,[illegible]16.

The Census Bureau, in reporting the statistics, said that the expenditures included costs of permanent improvements, such as $404,163,794 for highway construction, which if subtracted made the actual cost of running state governments, exclusive of such investment, amount to $1,120,004,8[illegible], or $9.[illegible] per capita of the country's population.

Slashed With Knife As He Waits for Car

McKeesport police and county detectives are searching for a man who early yesterday attacked Albert Comes, 24, of 973 Duquesne avenue, Duquesne, while Comes was waiting for a street car in Fifth avenue at Sinclair street, McKeesport. The attacker wielded a small penknife and slashed Comes on the forehead, face and nose. The victim was treated at the McKeesport Hospital. Comes could advance no reason for the attack.

Mercer Road Work Done Despite Winter

MERCER, Pa., Jan. 7.—Starting the first road job ever done in Mercer county in the winter, Baldwin & Co., of Willoughby, O., are grading the seven-mile route from Clarks Mills to Sandy Lake, contracted to them at a price of $263,000. It is said that the greater portion of the grading will be completed by spring.

645 Years Living Ended Within Few Days

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Eight persons, whose ages totaled 645 years, have died in Greene county within the last few days. Four names:

Mrs. Christina Kent, 86, Charles H. Hayes, 80, and David C. Hayes, 72, all of Jefferson; Sarah Hairston, 88, Levi Kerlin, 75, and Mrs. Mary A. Smith, 76, all of Waynesburg; Thomas J. Morris, 81, of Morrisville, and Nicholas P. Fehr, 78, of Mt. Morris.

CREEDS UNITED IN EULOGY OF DR. MASON

Although wholly at variance with the theology of the Rev. Dr. L. Walter Mason, pastor of the First Unitarian Church of Pittsburgh, who died last week, the Rev. Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan, in a sermon prelude at the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday, paid a glowing tribute to the latter's character and service. He said in part:

"In the going of Dr. Mason, not only has the First Unitarian Church lost a greatly beloved pastor, but the whole city has suffered loss as well. He was a man of unusually fine and gracious spirit. None could meet him without being impressed with his Christ-likeness of spirit and his abounding urbanity.

"It is not necessary to believe in a man's theology in order to recognize in him a miracle of grace. Otherwise, we must discredit nearly all the saints of Christendom. When a man achieves high Christian character, such as did Dr. Mason, when for more than a quarter of a century he exhales what has been called 'the fragrance of Christian goals,' we may all rejoice in his accomplishment."

Pawn Stub, Found In Bread, Clue To Gem Thief

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A pawn ticket, found in the crust of an uncut loaf of bread, solved the whereabouts of a $7,500 pearl necklace stolen December 12 from R. M. Lederer, a contractor living at a North Side hotel.

A detective found the pawn ticket while searching the apartment of Bernard V. Longpre, formerly a clerk at the hotel. Longpre was booked on a grand larceny charge. The necklace was recovered from the pawnbroker, who had lent $150 on it.

*Below zero.

Weather Conditions.

High barometric pressure is the dominating influence over the weather this morning, and, as a result, cold weather prevails over most of the country. Zero temperatures extend as far south as Central Illinois and Northern Missouri, and freezing weather to the Gulf. In Minnesota and the Dakotas the temperature ranges from 20 to 28 degrees below zero.

The high that is producing the cold weather over the Middlewest is centered over the northern plains and is moving rapidly eastward.

Architect Wants Buildings Signed Like Books

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Buildings should be signed by their architects just as books by their authors. This view was expressed by William Orr Ludlow, vice president of the New York Building Congress, in a statement made public by the American Institute of Architects.

He declared that architects owed this duty to the public and that the signing of the architect's name would attach "some personality to architecturally worthy buildings." He added that in this way the interest of the public would be aroused in the art of good building.

Church of England Head Is Recovering

SUCCESSFUL METHODS FOR COMBATTING FLU AND COLDS

Don't expose yourself to damp or wet weather.

THE DANGER

Cold, "Flu" and Pneumonia Germs multiply by the millions and attack the weak and the strong alike. Watch out for colds, they weaken your resistance. The greatest danger lies in that "simple cold." Kill that cold quickly.

It is of vast importance to clean out the entire intestinal tract upper and lower bowels regularly. Keep the kidneys well flushed and freshen and strengthen the blood.

Experience of 1918

The experience of the 1918 epidemic showed that one of the best and simplest treatments was to take a steaming hot cupful of Bulgarian Herb Tea.

Why take any chances, why not be prepared to fight off your cold or "flu."

The right thing to do now is to go to your druggist, get a box of Bulgarian Herb Tea. Kill off your cold. Take it steaming hot twice a week. It will heat up the chilled blood, increase the circulation and rid the bowels and intestines of poisons and germs. Every family will find Bulgarian Herb Tea (purely vegetable), a real blessing to have on hand in this time of need. Keep your system clean all winter.

See your druggist at once. Your health—perhaps your very life—may depend upon taking this simple precaution. Costs but a few cents.

If you have had the flu or a bad cold already, watch out for a recurrence. A cupful of Tea twice a week is your protection against attacks.

FRESH AND RELAXED AT THE JOURNEY'S END

ONE of the fine things about driving the new Ford is the way it takes you over the miles without fuss or fatigue.

Mentally you are at ease because you are sure of the mechanical performance of the car. No matter how long the trip, or rough or devious the roadway, you know it will bring you safely, quickly to the journey's end.

Through thickest traffic, up steepest hills, along the open road, you will drive with security and confidence because the new Ford is so alert and capable and so easy to operate and control.

Ease of control adds to comfort of driving

The steering wheel answers to the touch of a finger. Gears shift smoothly and silently. Brakes take hold quickly and firmly even on slippery pavements.

Unusual acceleration, speed and power are especially appreciated in emergencies. A space little longer than the car itself is all you need for parking.

These features simplify the mechanics of driving and, together with reliability, add a great deal to the mental comfort of motoring.

Physically, too, you will feel fresh and relaxed in the new Ford because it is such a roomy, easy-riding car.

The restfully tilted seats are made generously wide and are deeply cushioned, with coil springs of straight and hour-glass type. The backs are carefully designed to conform to the curves of the body.

Perhaps the most outstanding feature of the new Ford is found in its riding comfort. Somehow it seems to just glide along, as if every road were a good road. The rough spots are there, just as they have always been, but you do not feel them. It is almost as if a giant hand had smoothed the way before you. Even bad stretches may be taken at a reasonably fast pace without hard jolts or bumps or the exaggerated bouncing which is the cause of most motoring fatigue.

One reason, of course, is the use of four Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers—two in the front and two in the rear.

The Fordor Sedan is a particularly good family car not only because of its comfort, safety and beauty, but also because of its low first cost and low cost of operation and up-keep. Finished in a choice of colors—an unusual feature in a low-price car.

Of even greater importance, however, are the low center of gravity, the carefully planned balance of the car, and the many advantages of the transverse or crosswise springs.

These springs rest on their flexible ends with the heavy center part uppermost. Thus the very weight of the springs receives the benefit of spring action instead of hanging below as dead weight and increasing the hammer-like blows of road impacts.

Another element in decreasing unsprung weight (the weight carried below the flexible ends of the springs) is the construction of the front axle and rear axle housing. Through the use of fine steel and electric welding, they are made of exceptional strength, yet kept comparatively light in weight.

All of these factors combine to reduce or absorb the force of every unevenness in the road before it reaches the frame, chassis and body of the car. This means more comfort for you personally and also contributes to better performance and longer life for every mechanical part.

Another feature of the new Ford is the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield. This is so made that the glass will not shatter or fly under the hardest impact. It is an important safety factor in these days of heavy traffic.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

TO THE LOVELORN

By MARTIN ROSS JEFFERSON

"MY DEAR HEART-BROKEN" he wrote. "Your problem is not such a difficult one after all. Assure the young man of your love for him, make him realize your affection is heartfelt, and I'm sure he'll come back. But above all, keep a stiff upper lip and smile through your tears. Letty Foster."

"Letty Foster," whose real name was John Stanton, pulled the typewritten note from the machine on his desk and pinned it to the letter signed "Heartbroken," placing it in a basket already overflowing with correspondence. Then he ran his hand through his shock of auburn hair, lit a cigaret and delved into a large pile of letters addressed "Lovelorn Editor, The Daily Mail." He glanced over a dozen of them before he prepared to answer their queries. They were obviously from young men and women—readers of the paper who had come to know "Letty Foster" through "her" long columns of advice on questions of the heart and who in their distress turned to what was only a name, for help.

Here and there note paper of a violent hue stood out from the batch. Stanton knew those letters—they usually came from flappers in high school who presented their mythical problems just for the thrill of seeing their names in print. Here and there he found a type-written note from an impertinent adolescent who asked facetious questions—these letters usually found their way into the trash basket. But the others, the ones he felt were sincere, he gave his full attention to.

At the end of the day he got up from his desk and stretched. "Lord, what silly questions," he said to himself. "No problems at all. These people haven't any sense—love's not a problem, it's a game and anyone who doesn't know how to play the game should stay out."

Looking at John Stanton you could understand what he meant. Nothing seemed to have touched him—not even Time. With his curly auburn hair, his laughing gray eyes and his wide, humorous mouth he seemed like an overgrown schoolboy who spent the hours planning mischevious pranks. There was nothing of the 32-year-old newspaper man about this laughing boy who stood before you, carefree and indifferent to life's pain and worry. Love had come his way often and he had greeted it with outstretched palms and a cordial smile. When it had gone he had bid it adieu with a cheery "ta-ta"—and an air of relief. Women were such silly things—all fluff and no substance.

But one day Fate threw into his path a woman who was different—all fluff and plenty of substance—and that started things for John Stanton. Of course, you may think he could have avoided her, and ordinarily you would be right. But in this particular case Fate had ordained that she should be a newspaper reporter and that her desk should be placed right against his. Now it's impossible to avoid a girl who is pretty and intelligent and who works in the same office with you—if you want to avoid her. And John Stanton didn't want to avoid Flo Miller—at first.

At first he wanted to spend all his time with her. She dazzled him, with her incredibly blue eyes, her childlike mouth, her general air of being utterly surprised at everything you said. The first week she was there he caught himself watching her slim body move as she walked to the desk of the city editor—listening to her voice as she talked over the telephone. But he had no opportunity to see her alone, to talk to her without the deafening accompaniment of telegraph wires buzzing, reporters shouting for copy boys.

Flo had made it plain, after John's third dinner invitation, that she did not expect to go out with the boys in the office. She had said something tactful about business and social conflicts, and he had been too sensitive to ask for a fuller explanation. So the weeks flew by and still John Stanton adored at a distance, worshipped above the noise of clicking typewriters and insistent telephone bells.

"If only I knew," he thought, "that she liked me a little—if only I had the tiniest assurance that she knew of my existence." But Flo gave no such assurances. She came into the office each morning like an errant sunbeam—casting light around her, radiating warmth and good feeling. As she sat down to her typewriter, before picking up the day's assignment, she said "Good morning" to "Letty Foster," and sometimes chatted for a moment or two. But aside from that, and an occasional comment on some exciting newspaper story, they were strangers. John no longer extended dinner invitations—he knew it would be futile. He contented himself with knowing that the object of his love was there beside him, for eight hours every day—until he could not longer bear it.

Four months of this agony had passed and one evening the editor of the Lovelorn Column stayed later at the office. He tried to ladle out advice on problems of the heart to others—but found he could not make his mind behave. Every letter that he picked up seemed to be another photograph of Florence—her eyes looked out at him from every envelope he tore open. He felt he was going crazy. "This is a fine fix for a Heart-Balm Expert," he told himself. "No trouble at all telling others what to do—but when it comes to a problem of my own—" His arms slid to his sides and his head dropped.

How long he remained in this position he did not realize until an office boy, who was working late, came up to him. "Mr. Stanton," the boy said, "is there anything I can do for you—you look so—unhappy."

Stanton pressed the youngster's hand. "I guess not, sonny," he said. "Unless you can give me some advice to the lovelorn." The boy laughed. "You're a funny one to come to somebody else for that," he replied. Then drawing himself up, "What is the trouble, sir?"

"What would you do to find out whether a girl liked—loved—you, Jerry," he asked, half in amusement, half in earnestness. "If you were crazy about a girl and you didn't have any idea about how she felt—what would you do?"

The office boy hesitated a moment, then with cocksureness of youth replied, "Why that's easy, Mr. Stanton. Just write her a note and tell her how you feel. Ask her to marry you—that's what I would do." Stanton laughed. "And suppose she made you feel like a fool—suppose she just made fun of you."

The boy looked very earnest. "Well, if you're honestly in love, you—it really doesn't matter." Then, out of sheer embarrassment he scooted out of the room. Stanton gazed after the boy as though he had been a vision sent from heaven. Then he stuck a piece of copy paper in the typewriter and wrote feverishly for half an hour, leaving the note on the desk next to his. "I'll come in late tomorrow so she can get a chance to read it—and laugh," he added as he left the office.

But it was laughter of a very different sort that he indulged in the following morning. For when he arrived at 10 he found a reply left in his typewriter that made his heart beat faster and his face flush. "Dear Mr. Lovelorn Editor," it read, "It takes you an awfully long time to solve your own problems—but I think your solution, in this case, is a sound one. Respectfully yours, Flo Miller."

Three months later a very radiant office boy received a large package containing a baseball bat, a leather mitt and mask, and an unbelievably large check.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO FLU

Coughs from Flu May Weaken Your System and Lead to Serious Trouble

You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion may help you avoid flu, but is not sold as a flu remedy. If you have fever, or think you may have the flu, see your doctor immediately.

PATRICIA PITT'S SOCIAL COMMENT

Society's Exodus About To Start to Warm Southern Climes

IT'S just as well, isn't it, that the social season is about over —with the exception of a few more weddings of note? Because, who could devote her attention to such things as the choice of a gown for certain event or the problems of invitation lists when the mercury on the thermometer is careening heartlessly toward the zero mark? I'm sure you'll agree that the most fine-spun society conversationalist would deem a discussion of such things as these impossible.

As the [illegible] our ears, [illegible] mocks at [illegible] fireplaces, [illegible] pamphlets [illegible] remind us that [illegible] cruel winter, [illegible] we'll hear [illegible] one leaving for [illegible] or Bermuda.

SOME hardy [illegible] here, though [illegible] January [illegible] latest January [illegible] tion, to remain [illegible] the day set by Elizabeth Roberts Buchanan, daughter of the Edward Roberts Buchanans, of Dunsmuir avenue, for her marriage to Kenneth Edward Nicholson, son of the A. Edward Nicholsons, of North Negley avenue.

The ceremony will take place that afternoon at four o'clock in the annex of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association with the Rev. Dr. Joseph Ray Ewers, of the First Presbyterian Church, officiating.

Elizabeth will have as her only attendant her sister, Anna Donaldson Buchanan.

Leslie B. Snyder, of New York, will be best man, and Thomas D. Nevlands, Jr., of Great Neck, Long Island; Stanley Sweet, of New York; John Howe Bell, of Pittsburgh, brother of the bride, and W. Arch Irvin, of Pittsburgh, will be the ushers.

SPEAKING of weddings [illegible] reminded that Augusta Leonard, daughter of the Dennik A. Leonards, will become the bride of Clarence Stanley, son of Mrs. William Stanley, of Great Barrington, Mass., on Wednesday.

The wedding will take place at 8:30 o'clock that afternoon in Calvary Protestant Episcopal Church, with the Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten officiating.

O[illegible]

[illegible] and Rabbi Alexander Mann as officiants. Following the ceremony [illegible] will be a reception in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association.

Of course, the last of the entertainments to be given for the debutantes of 1928 was a buffet supper for Miss Edwina S. Fickes, of Woodland road, given in her home last evening for three buds—Jane Alexander, Mary Margaret Marshall and Harriet Wainwright.

As usual, there were [illegible] people there. [illegible] Bows of spring flowers [illegible] the supper room, which was [illegible] by cream-colored tapers in silver candlesticks.

While I'm talking about the Fickes family, I wonder if you know that Mrs. Fickes' daughter Harriet spent the holidays in Aiken with Mrs. William Hoopes, of the Ruskin apartments.

Harriet went abroad, I recall, in August, and is to return home some time in March.

Mrs. Fickes had planned to present Harriet to society this season, but later, Harriet decided to go abroad. She'll be among the debutantes of next year, for certain, I understand.

As usual, immediately after the holidays, have come many engagement announcements. An interesting one comes from George A. Reynolds who officiated at the wedding of the bride's parents 26 years ago.

NOBILE TELLS WHY HE WAS SAVED FIRST

began circling round us. I turned then towards Cecioni, who was a little distance from us in a corner of the tent, and I ordered him: "Put the sledge in order."

Rescuer Lands

With these words we had euphemistically christened that piece of metallic armor of the cabin which Cecioni with unremitting efforts had put together so it could be transported.

While Cecioni worked I looked at the two flying aeroplanes. One of them, the seaplane, kept high and circled widely round our post. The other came slowly down, continuing its evolutions over the landing ground.

I followed it anxiously with my eyes. The aviator wanted to verify the state of the field. It flew round again and again. Now he has touched and does not rise again. He has landed!

I gave a great sigh of relief. An unrestrainable joy filled my heart. I turned towards Cecioni, crying to him: "Thank heaven. Let us give thanks prostrating ourselves on the ground." Emotion conquered me, thinking of the imminent safety of my companions.

Touching Greeting

Ceased the long, indescribable torture, alternating hope and discouragement, the much-tried suspense of waiting, the anxiety about the wireless. Here at last we were in touch with humanity. A man, the rescuer, was there. In a little we should embrace this privileged being who had succeeded in coming to us.

Then Behounek, who was on the lookout, advised me that Viglieri, Biagi and a stranger were coming toward us.

At last they appeared. The stranger, in the uniform of an aviator, had a sympathetic, open face, a little burned.

Viglieri introduced him to me: "Here is the General." As words seemed to me so insufficient to express our gratitude, I begged Viglieri to raise me up so I could embrace him. Then they laid me down again.

Lundborg, the aviator, began to speak:

"General, I have come to take you all. The landing ground is excellent. I will transport all of you during the night. You must come with me first."

"Who Shall Go?"

"It is impossible," I replied, and, indicating Cecioni, continued: "Take him first. So I have decided."

Lundborg replied with firmness: "No, I have orders to take you first, because you have to give instructions for the search of your other companions."

I remembered that only two or three days before the command on board the Cita di Milano had asked me for "data and instructions for the search for the envelope" (of the airship), which I had not succeeded in sending on account of the bad functioning of the wireless, and instinctively I connected the words of Lundborg with this request.

Nevertheless, I was reluctant. The idea of returning to land before my companions was abhorrent to me, even considering it was only anticipating them by a few hours. For a thousand sentimental reasons I wished to follow my companions, not to precede them. I insisted with firmness:

"Please take him first. So I have decided."

"No, General," replied Lundborg. "Do not insist. We will take you to our flying place, not far from here. Then I will be back soon to carry the others."

And as I began to insist again he cut me short sharply, as if to stop any discussion:

He said, "No, I cannot take him now (and he indicated Cecioni). He is too heavy. It is impossible to take him without leaving here the aviator who has come with me, and I cannot do this. Later I will come back alone and then will take him. Also to carry him to the machine would take too long, and we have no time to lose. Let us hasten, please." And he pointed to the apparatus, of which the propellor could be seen in movement. "Please, do it quickly."

I turned to my companions to ask their advice. Viglieri and Biagi approved.

Biagi said: "It is better you go first. We shall be more tranquil."

Cecioni interposed: "You go. If anything happens, you will think of our families."

Nobile Goes First

It was still undecided for a moment. I did not like to go, but on the other hand it seemed useless for me to cause the aviator to lose time by a useless discussion. I dragged myself to the tent to question Trojani.

"Yes, it is better so. You go." Then I decided that I would start.

But it was not easy. I needed more courage to go than to remain, but under the circumstances I believed that to obey Lundborg was an imperious duty. It was useless to prolong the discussion. He was impatient and seemed not to want to lose more time, and moreover had declared that he could not carry Cecioni.

In regard to Viglieri and Biagi, it was out of the question, as I had already decided that they should go last. It was a question of seeing whether I or rather Behounek or Trojani should go.

But I was wanted for the search of the others. There was no doubt that my presence and my advice would be of use. I could not undertake the responsibility of a refusal. I therefore decided to leave.

Biagi had brought me the thick vest of Iceland wool, the same I had worn during the voyage of the Norge.

But he said: "Please leave all the things you can. It is better to be light. It is not cold."

"Farewell!"

I followed his advice and put down the heavy vest. I also left the mountain cap, remaining bareheaded, and the thick, high boots of reindeer skin which hitherto had protected my legs. What should I take with me? The book containing the records of the route, the instruments and the few other things which ought to be saved could be taken away in one of the other trips. I would take nothing except the photographs of Mary. The two records of the wireless?

Ah, yes, I will take them with me. They might be useful.

My companions and myself were really exasperated with the bad functioning of the wireless. The two recording books contained valuable documents, so I therefore decided to take them.

I embraced my three companions who remained in the tent. Then Viglieri and Biagi took me, one by the legs and the other by the arms, and carried me. Useless to relate the small vicissitudes of that little journey. Sometimes I tried to lessen the fatigue of my two companions by leaning my sound leg on the ground and pressing heavily on it to help to push.

Notwithstanding this, the two broke down with fatigue, so much so that every now and then they had to rest. Lundborg, who had gone on ahead, on perceiving this hurried to the landing ground and sent his companion, Schyberg, to help us. With the latter's aid we at last reached the place.

I was astonished. I could never have credited that in the midst of an upheaved pack there could be such a perfect level. It seemed that God Himself had placed it there for our salvation. The snow was high.

Lundborg with Schyberg meanwhile tried the motor, then called us. I was taken to the aeroplane and put on board. I gave my last orders to Viglieri and Biagi:

"As soon as we start, bring Cecioni at once to this place, so that he may be ready to start at once. After Cecioni the others will leave in this order: Behounek, Trojani, Viglieri and Biagi. You, Viglieri, take command for these few hours."

The last emotional embrace, the last caress to my dear companions.

"We shall see each other later. I will wait for you. Good bye."

NORTH SIDER KILLED WHEN AUTO HITS POLE, 4 INJURED

A man was killed and four companions injured seriously early today when an automobile, which North Side police say was speeding in Brighton road, was demolished when it struck an iron pole at the corner of Lecky way. Two of the injured are girls.

Rex Flannigan, 19, of 860 Western avenue, was dead when police began to remove him to St. John's Hospital. The injured are John Flinner, 21, of 823 North Lincoln avenue; Walter Reuter, 22, of 1832 Wynhurst street; Jane Charles, 17, of 512 Sherman avenue, and Dorothy Swartz, 18, of 2513 Spring Garden avenue. The injured are in St. John's Hospital.

The Charles girl is reported in critical condition, suffering a fractured skull and internal injuries. Flinner also suffered a fractured skull and Reuter was internally injured.

The Swartz girl suffered a deep laceration on the right hip and probably was internally hurt. Police say she stated that Flinner was driving at the time of the crash, although Flinner denies operating the car. The cause of the accident is not known.

RICKARD'S PASSING SHOCKS WORLD

PROMOTER'S DEATH AFFECTS BOXING

THOUGH the bulletins of the preceding 48 hours had made known the fact that his condition was extremely critical, announcement of the death of George L. (Tex) Rickard yesterday morning at a Miami Beach, Fla., hospital, where he had undergone an operation for the removal of a gangrenous appendix on New Year's Day, came as none the less of a shock to the entire sports world. The passing of the famous promoter causes deep and sincere regret wherever he was known, either personally or by reputation, and that means practically everywhere in the international realm of sports.

Tex Rickard

It is no exaggeration to say that Rickard was the greatest individual figure and the most widely-known man in all sportdom. Though he gave the major part of his attention to the promotion of boxing on the highest scale ever known, particularly in the heavyweight class, he also was one of the leaders in hockey, was active for a time in professional football, had much to do with the building up and advancement of greyhound racing, staged a number of big indoor running races and six-day bicycle contests, was endeavoring almost until the time of his fatal illness to purchase control of the New York National League Baseball Club, and in general was the greatest one-man sport power that ever existed.

RICKARD was the only promoter in history who stood out beyond the attractions he presented. In the heavyweight fight game, particularly prior to his coming, the championship contenders in big title matches generally received nearly all of the public attention and the identity of the average promoter was almost forgotten.

But it was never so where Tex was concerned. He was bigger than his shows. It was his connection with them that made them big. He stood out at the time, and continued to stand out afterward, as even a greater figure than any of the famous champions whom he virtually created. The fact that Rickard was behind a show made it immeasurably more attractive and gave the public a degree of confidence in the affair that no other promoter ever was able to inspire.

RING patrons know that such a show would be run off properly without a hitch and that every promise would be kept to the letter. That feeling added largely to the attractiveness of every match and increased its drawing power many fold. Rickard's connection with a fight, and his own unrivaled manner of steaming it up and handling it, often drew more customers than did the fighters themselves.

Rickard, truly, revolutionized the boxing game. He picked it out of the gutter and made it a popular pastime that is now patronized by classes of people who would have scorned to give it even a thought in the old days.

Jack Dempsey

FROM his first show, when he brought Joe Gans and Battling Nelson together for the lightweight championship at Goldfield, Nev., on September 3, 1906, through his million-dollar shows to the all-time record gate of $2,658,660 at the Gene Tunney-Jack Dempsey bout in Chicago on September 22, 1927, and right up to the time of his death, Rickard did more for boxing and boxers than any other man who ever lived. What he accomplished for the uplift of the game could be written only in volumes.

THE death of such a man cannot fail seriously to upset for a long time the sport in which he was the acknowledged leader. The Jack Sharkey-Young Stribling match at Miami Beach and other proposed shows must necessarily be affected.

Even the scheduled come-back of Jack Dempsey himself, the closest man in the game to Rickard, may be rendered uncertain, and there will be a reaction that cannot fail to affect to some extent the whole fistic sport everywhere. But those are problems of the future. For the present the sports world is given over to a feeling of deepest regret at the passing of a figure of power, progress and rare sportsmanship whose place may not be filled for generations, if ever.

IN ACQUIRING Homer Summa by purchase from Cleveland, Connie Mack may have taken a much longer step toward solving the Athletics' outfield problem for next season than would appear probable from the fact, that a club as low as Cleveland was in the 1928 race should be found willing to let the player go.

Alvin Crowder

Regardless of what the Indian management may have thought of him, Summa, who was given a short trial here in 1920 under George Gibson, looks to many baseball followers like a very serviceable ball player. He is 29 years old but still fast, a fine fielder, and in five of his seven seasons with Cleveland he batted above .300, reaching his lowest mark in 1928 with an average of .284. Handled properly, and Mack probably knows how, Homer ought to help the A's out a little just where they are in need of additional strength.

PITCHER ALVIN CROWDER, of the St. Louis Americans, who might have remained a Pirate if the Southern Association club that owned him at the time had not broken its agreement on the purchase terms, and who was later discarded by Washington, not only led the American League flingers in percentage of victories last year, but reached a mark attained by only five other hurlers in the history of that circuit. By winning 21 games against only five defeats, he made a percentage of .808. The only other American League moundsmen ever to attain such a percentage were Walter Johnson, Stanley Coveleskie, Ed Cicotte, Joe Wood and Chief Bender.

RALPH GREENLEAF, who, after his recent defeat by Frank Taberski for the world pocket billiard championship, challenged Taberski to a special match for $1,000 a side in which he would attempt to make 1,500 points before Taberski could score 1,200, in his form of several years ago, was the greatest player that pocket billiards ever has seen, in the opinion of Joseph Concannon, nationally-known cueist, spending several weeks here in the role of instructor, representing the National Billiard Association.

And Concannon should know. He has been a professional pocket billiardist for 18 years, first coming into prominence when the veteran Alfredo de Oro was champion. He is one of the many observers who believe that Greenleaf, great as he was, has passed his peak, and that, instead of having a chance to beat Taberski 1,500 to 1,200, he would be fortunate to win from the stolid Pole on even terms.

THOUGH he never has held the title, Concannon has played all of the topnotchers. Mention of Taberski recalled to Joe a match that he played with the Schenectady shot-maker in October, 1919, for the championship.

Going into the final block, Concannon had a lead of 127 balls, but Taberski won by a narrow margin, making 158 called shots without a miss. The block, which Taberski has described as the toughest

TRIBUTE PAID TEX

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—A genuine wave of sorrow and regret from friend and foe alike swept over the New York sports world at the news of the death in Miami Beach, Fla., of Tex Rickard, greatest figure in the history of sports promoter.

Boxers, managers, rival promoters, officials and co-workers in the management of Madison Square Garden joined in expressions of tribute to a man generally respected for his exceptional ability and loved by those who knew him well.

In a statement signed by John S. Hammond, vice president and assistant to Rickard in the management of Madison Square Garden, the corporation controlling the promoter's sport palace expressed its profound regret at his passing and extended deepest sympathy to his family.

BEFRIENDED ATHLETICS

"Mr. Rickard has been the president of the corporation since its inception, and its phenomenal expansion during the recent years was largely attributed to his guiding hand," the statement said. "It was due to his efforts as the premier promoter of boxing contests in the world that these contests have achieved the status of importance and interest which they now enjoy.

"Not limited, however, to the promotion of these contests, his activities had extended to practically all other fields of sports. His name will go down in the history of athletics as one of its sincere befrienders and his achievements in this field will remain outstanding ones. The fact that Mr. Rickard's death occurred in Miami Beach, where he was engaged in carrying out the business of the corporation, only served to intensify the sorrow felt by the organization, which served under him for so long a period."

William F. Carey, treasurer of the Garden corporation, decided that the passing of Rickard "removes from the stage the most interesting, spectacular figure the world of sport, and particularly boxing, has ever known. His colorful life rivaled in its romantic appeal those of many of the great characters of fiction.

WAS GENIUS

"His passing will be felt as a great personal loss to all who knew him; to them and to the world he will continue to live in the greatness of the structure that is Madison Square Garden and its highly efficient organization which stands as a monument to his genius."

William C. Muldoon, 83-year-old "solid man" of the New York State Athletic Commission, had a premonition of Rickard's death.

"I know of no one who is qualified to succeed him at the present time. It is a severe shock to me. I was awake most of the night and every time I awoke Tex was on my mind. When the telephone rang I feared that it was bad news of him. Again, all I can say is that it is a very severe shock," he said.

"He was a great figure in and a credit to the sporting world. His place will be hard to fill." Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankee ball club, said.

George M. Cohan and Sam H. Harris, the latter at one time manager of Terry McGovern, led the expressions of regret from the theatrical field, wherein Rickard numbered many friends. Grover A. Whalen, New York police commissioner and a thorough fight fan, praised the promoter as "a pioneer whose memory will always be revered for his great achievements and good sportsmanship."

Will Gibson and Charley Harvey, managers respectively of Gene Tunney and Tom Heeney in the last heavyweight championship battle Rickard promoted, spoke for the rank and file of boxing.

"We've lost the greatest asset the game had," Gibson said, while Harvey, almost overcome by emotion, said: "No one in the world can take his place. It's a bad thing for Madison Square Garden, but a terrible thing for boxing."

WALKER MOURNS DEATH

Mayor James Walker said Rickard was an outstanding figure in the promotion of big sports events; in fact, he excelled in this line of endeavor.

"He was the premier wherever heavyweight boxing contests were concerned," the Mayor added. "In common with all lovers of sports, I mourn his death."

Humbert J. Fugazy, boxing promoter and Rickard's leading rival here, sent the following telegram to Mrs. Rickard:

"Very sorry indeed to learn of Mr. Rickard's death. There is no question but that he is responsible for the high plane on which boxing is run today. He proved himself to be the world's premier promoter."

SLAUGHTER IS W. P. I. A. L. GOAT

By JESS CARVER.

One of the most popular indoor sports of early January is that of stock-taking. Big and little business houses indulge in it, and big and little individuals go in for it to some extent—at least, smart ones do.

I can think of no smarter move for the W. P. I. A. L. to make than to take stock of its rules and regulations. It might even go further and effect a general reorganization, but if it will only rewrite its resident eligibility code, all will be well.

The league never pulled a greater boner than when it permitted the decisions committee to rule young Tom Slaughter, of Scottdale High School, ineligible for further athletic competition because his parents are not residing in that town at present. The case is a sorry one, both from Slaughter's angle and from the leagues. It makes the league look bad (or worse), and keeps young Tom from enjoying his rights as a good high school student.

There is Tom, a fine student and a good athlete, finishing his high school education in the town in which he was born and raised, ruled out because his father found it necessary to leave Scottdale and move, temporarily, to Kentucky until industrial conditions become settled. The elder Slaughter maintains a legal residence in Scottdale, provides for the support of Tom, who lives with his grandparents, and will eventually return. He obtained a leave of absence from the concern with whom he was employed.

It was perfectly natural for Tom to stay in Scottdale, but he can't play any more football or basketball and still stand in with the W. P. I. A. L.

The rule under which Slaughter was barred provides that a student must attend the high school in the town in which his parent or parents are living in order to be eligible for athletics. How about the orphans? Think that over.

It was for the violation of this same rule, unintentionally, that New Castle was suspended for a year. Beaver Falls lodged the protest, which was one of three, and out went Bridie's team, although New Castle was a 40-0 victor over Beaver Falls. The player protested was a second-string quarterback.

Charles H. Young, president of the New Castle school board, told the league a thing or two as he asked the committee, Saturday, if it were not possible that the penalty imposed on the Castleites had been a trifle severe. He presented proof that a Beaver Falls man was guilty of having violated the same rule, though he pointed out that New Castle was entering no protest.

It is not the fault of the decisions committee that this rule is on the books, though it is drawing a fine line when they rule out a lad like young Slaughter.

Portia had the right dope, remember, when she said:

"The quality of mercy is not strained;

BRIBE HEARING POSTPONED

BOSTON, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—With the investigation by the Boston Finance Commission into the Sunday sports graft scandal adjourned until tomorrow, interest today centered on the City Council, where the election of a president for 1929 was expected to bring to the fore all of the bitterness engendered by the charges and counter charges of the past week.

William G. Lynch, accused by Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Boston National League baseball club, of seeking a bribe for himself and 12 other councilmen to insure early passage of the bill to allow big league baseball here on Sundays, was being backed by several of his colleagues.

CHICAGO, OTTAWA INVADE

By CARL W. SHATTO.

PITTSBURGH'S hockey Pirates, who spent most of last week on the road, are back in the city today to make ready for the invasion of the Chicago Blackhawks tomorrow night. The Bucs returned from Boston last night with a large assortment of bruises, collected in the exceptionally rough and fierce battle with the Bruins Saturday night, when they went down to 3-2 defeat in the last two minutes of play.

The Boston skirmish, following the hot fight in New York Thursday, when they held the champion Rangers to a 2-2 deadlock, left the Pittsburghers pretty well fagged out, and today's rest is very welcome.

As a result of picking up only one point in their last three games, the Pirates today are confronted with the necessity of shaking their home ice jinx and winning a few games at Duquesne Garden if they are to gain a money and play-off berth. Boston's triumph over the Bucs boosted the Bruins' edge over the locals to two and one-half games, and Boston appears to be the club that Benny Leonard's puckmen will have to beat out if they are to get into the Stanley Cup series for the world title.

The Hawks, who play here tomorrow night, and the Ottawa Senators, who play here Saturday, may bring some relief to the tough situation. The Hawks are in the cellar in the American Group standing, and the Senators are bringing up the rear in the Canadian Group race. If the Bucs are going to "strike while the iron is hot," they will do their striking this week.

A wobbly uncertain defense deprived the Pirates of a triumph in New York after they had rallied for a 2-0 lead on the Rangers in the first two periods, and in handicapped form again in Boston Saturday after they had knotted the count at all with only about three minutes of play remaining. This defect is likely to be remedied this week, however, for Bert McCaffery, who was out for two weeks with an attack of tonsilitis, is back in form again, and he and Holway are expected to share the defense burden with Smith and McKinnon.

In addition to their home games, the Bucs will meet the Rangers in Detroit on Thursday and the Hawks in Chicago on Sunday.

GARDEN TO PICK NEW HEAD

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(INS.)—First Vice President William F. Carey and directors of the Madison Square Garden Corporation were scheduled to meet late today to name a successor to Tex Rickard.

The meeting also will consider the Stribling-Sharkey fight in Miami late next month. It is expected that Jack Dempsey will be selected to take Rickard's place as the promoter of this affair.

STRONER TO GO TO BUC CAMP EARLY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Jim Stroner, Western League marvel who has just been measured for a Pirate uniform, is likely to go to spring training camp with the pitchers and catchers in order that Manager Donie Bush may study the highly-lauded player with a view of grooming him for the third base job.

Stroner, a Chicago boy whose diamond doings suddenly aroused a flock of big-league scouts, is a welcome stranger to the Buccaneer fold. Bush has never seen Jim pick up a ball, but one must take the word of competent baseball men in matters of this kind, and when rival pilots tried to negotiate swaps involving Stroner, Bush naturally felt that he had a diamond in the rough.

So the Wichita graduate in all probability will be told to have his satchel ready in time to hook up with the advance squad. By ordering the youngster to camp ahead of the other outfielders and outfielders, Bush will have a week in which to instruct the rookie in whatever details he may show.

It also develops that Chick Fraser, court jester and fungoly artist of the squad put a fast one over on Jim before embarking in the race of the young Mr. Stroner. Fraser, it appears, saw Jim when the lad took his other shift and when from his Chicago home to the little Mississippi Valley League.

Running true to form, Chick said nothing when other scouts began to take notice of the youngster after Jim began to shine in the Western League. But when they made the quips as they found that sly old Chick had cornered the market so far as the thirdsacker was concerned.

Heidelberg Advances In National Play

By TOM BIRKS

PLAYING on hard, frozen grounds on the coldest day of the season, two major league soccer clubs had to fight hard to stay in the National amateur tourney. Heidelberg defeated the Heidelberg Eagles by a 4-goals-to-2 score, and the Pittsburgh Soccer Club was carried into an extra-time period to tie Glendale, 3-3, at Heidelberg and Glendale, respectively, yesterday afternoon.

The crowds were small, but were rewarded by seeing two thrilling battles, the same crowd taking in both fights, the Glendale-Pittsburgh game starting early.

And what a fight the senior clubs had! The day and conditions hardly warranted good football, and anything could have happened. It nearly did. Pittsburgh tied the score in the last few minutes of play.

At Glendale, Pittsburgh opened the scoring, Toman turning the trick. Glendale came back strong, and Sirko equalized. Then Scotti gave the home team the lead.

In the second half McNair tied the game with a good shot. Then, amid scenes of wild excitement Petrosky again put Glendale in front. Just before the finish, Anale Rehling tied up matters, and neither team scored in the extra periods.

The crowd then went to Heidelberg to see the former national champions have a tough time with the juniors. The Eagles won the toss and made Heidelberg face a hard-blowing wind. Before the interval was reached, the Eagles were two goals up on the Green, and Gold's Urbanic scored twice, and Gerald Egan never had a chance. Huff Donnelli also came into the limelight by missing a penalty.

However, with the wind in their favor, the Green and Gold attack started matters, and Huff Donnelli scored from a penalty for hands. Keeping up the pressure, Chappell tallied, and it was followed by a goal from McCauley. Just before the finish, Huff Donnelli staged a solo act and pocketed the net for the fourth time. That finished the scoring. The champions won all right, but got an awful scare in doing so. The Juniors gave all they had, and the seniors had a tough time passing into the next round.

TEX WAS GOOD SON-MOTHER

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 7.—(AP.)—The 81-year-old mother of Tex Rickard, Mrs. L. J. Adams, was dry-eyed when told of the death of the sporting promoter at her modest bungalow here.

"He was one good son if there ever was one," Mrs. Adams said. "He never brought me anything but happiness and joy. We had some good times together, and he thought his mother was a good sport."

Jack Dempsey, who was at Rickard's deathbed, telegraphed Mrs. Adams to "be brave. I will be with you soon." The aged woman said that she would look forward to the visit of the former heavyweight champion, of whom she is very fond. She expects him to visit her soon after the funeral.

With her were her two daughters, sisters of Rickard, Mrs. Alice Burke and Mrs. Jessie Carlin, both of Seattle.

Lenglen Has Chance To Restore Status

PARIS, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—If Suzanne Lenglen wants to be restored to amateur tennis ranks, she need only ask.

The French Tennis Federation, at its annual meeting, adopted the following resolution: "Any tennis player formerly belonging to the Federation and later disqualified for professionalism, may be reinstated if, since the actions which caused disqualification, he has done no other professional playing."

AMATEUR SKATERS MEET

Another West Penn Hockey League match is scheduled at Duquesne Garden tonight, Philadelphia Company meeting the Hornets at 8:30 o'clock.

DIEGEL WINS OPEN TOURNEY

CHULA VISTA, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP.)—Through chilling blasts of rain and wind sweeping over the rolling Chula Vista course Leo Diegel, National P. G. A. champion, stroked his way to a close and thrilling victory in the $2,500 San Diego open golf tournament ending yesterday.

Diegel had an aggregate of 285 for the 72 holes. His card was six strokes under par for that distance.

RICKARD FEARED SURGERY

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—Tex Rickard's fear of surgery and aversion to hospitals long ago prevented removal of the infected appendix that finally caused his death.

A few days before leaving for the Southland to fish and golf and promote a heavyweight match between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling, Rickard was receiving newspapermen in his offices at Madison Square Garden. One of them told him of an operation he had to undergo for sinus trouble.

"You shouldn't do that," Tex said. "Don't let them cut you. No one should have operations. No one should be cut like that. It isn't necessary."

Tex told how he had avoided an operation for removal of the appendix for 12 years by having his side "frozen" after each attack. It seemed that every major bout the promoter staged brought pains to his side. Tex said he barely got to the Dempsey-Carpentier match in 1921, but heroically bore the pain and forgot all about it once the fists started flying.

M'LARNIN, GLICK MEET

WORD TEX'S BOND

LONDON, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—The boxing expert of the Daily Telegraph today concluded a lengthy memoir of George L. (Tex) Rickard by saying "throughout his astonishing career his word always was his bond."

Sporting Life expressed the belief that Rickard's death probably closed the era of fabulous purses for boxers.

RICKARD MINUS RIVAL AS PROMOTER

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—The death of George L. (Tex) Rickard in Miami Beach yesterday removed from boxing a figure more powerful than champions, a character unique and without a rival in the field of promotion, and the most important single figure in the lifting of the sport from the ham-and-egg class into the field of big business.

Boasting little or no experience in sport promotion, probably without ever having lifted his own hands to a position of offense or defense, Rickard revolutionized the staging of boxing bouts. Forced into boxing by home town pride in 1906, he staged a lightweight championship match between Battling Nelson and Joe Gans at Goldfield, Nev., and ran a stake of $30,000 saved from gold mining days in Alaska into a personal fortune of several million dollars.

WORK OUT OWN DETAILS

His death robbed the Madison Square Garden Corporation, for which he has made millions of dollars in profits through the promotion of boxing extravaganzas, hockey, bicycle racing, and other sports, of its guiding genius.

He left no man in the organization capable of taking the seat at his two-ton bronze desk and dealing with the modern problems of fisticuffs with the sagacity, color and business ability Tex possessed.

The details of important matches from the battles of contenders in the lightest classes right down to the staging of the $3,000,000 heavyweight spectacle between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney in Chicago, were kept mostly in his own brain. He bothered little with records and notations, kept no accurate track of expenditures necessary for promotion and work on the principle that when the receipts were finally counted and the expenses totalled, there always would be left a fine margin of profit.

Only twice in his entire career was the maker of champions wrong. Both his financial failures came last summer when he staged a lightweight title bout between Jimmy McLarnin and Sammy Mandell at a loss of $100,000 and dropped $300,000 in the promotion of Gene Tunney's final battle with Tom Heeney. He made millionaires of two heavyweight champions, Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, and set up astonishing purses for fighters in every other division.

Although no one can be expected to successfully replace Rickard at the head of the fight business, management of Madison Square Garden probably will revert to William F. Carey, treasurer and vice president of the corporation, who with Rickard Hoyt, Wall Street banker, controls a majority of the stock. Contrary to general belief, Rickard himself owned little stock in the Garden and received only $50,000 a year as president of the corporation.

DEMPSEY MAY BE SUCCESSOR

Rumors about the Garden indicated that Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion and, to Rickard's mind, the greatest fighter ever to draw on gloves, might be offered the post left vacant by the promoter's death. It appeared unlikely that Dempsey, with the ties of friendship that bound him to Rickard broken, would ever enter the ring again, the old Manassa Mauler, the greatest drawing card Rickard ever had, had promised the promoter he would come out of retirement and take one more fling at the championship he lost to Tunney in 1926.

Other possibilities as the new president of Madison Square Garden appeared in John Chapman, head of the six-day bike racing induction and a former assistant to Rickard, and Col. John S. Hammond, in charge of the Garden after Tex left for Miami Beach to stage the Stribling-Sharkey match. Mike Jacobs, confidante of Rickard, also may be considered for the post.

Rickard's death came as he gradually was divorcing himself from the major duties about the Garden. While he intended to hold his post as long as he lived, Tex sought more and more to retire from the active picture, staying on more in an advisory capacity while some younger man did most of the work. He had large property holdings in Miami Beach and had just completed erection of a dog racing establishment there. He intended to spend a majority of his time in the South.

BORN IN KANSAS CITY

Before Tex Rickard ever thought of promoting a boxing match his career had stretched through a string of story-book adventures from the plains of Texas to the gold fields of Alaska and back to the gambling halls of Nevada.

He was born in Kansas City, Mo., January 2, 1870, but his father moved to Sherman, Tex., when the only son, George L., was 4 years old. The youngster grew up on a cattle ranch at Cambridge, Tex., and was riding herd in Henrietta after his father died when Rickard was 10 years old.

After several years as a cowboy and later Town Marshall of Henrietta, young Rickard joined the rush to the Klondike in Alaska in 1895. He landed with another cowboy at Juneau, lugged his sleds through the Chilkoot Pass and 300 miles across lakes to the head of the Yukon, and promptly "struck it rich" in the famous Bonanza strike.

With a profit of $60,000, Rickard set up a gambling hall and saloon in Dawson. In one night, a band of lucky miners wiped him out playing roulette and faro and he was forced to cut wood for five months at $15 a cord for a living. He swung his axe at the side of Rex Beach, noted novelist, until 1899, when he hiked to Nome and set up another saloon and gambling hall with only $35 capital.

Rickard came East to take over the old Madison Square Garden in 1920, an arena then considered a "White Elephant." Within a few years he lifted fight promotion to record levels, built the new Madison Square Garden, and made a big business of boxing.

His greatest successes were Gene Tunney's heavyweight title battles with Jack Dempsey at Philadelphia and Chicago with gates running over $2,000,000. He promoted the battle in which Jack Dempsey won the title from Jess Willard at Toledo in 1918 and from that time on staged every heavyweight title match. Dempsey's title defense against Luis Firpo under Rickard's direction drew more than $1,000,000 and the Dempsey-Carpentier fray more than $1,500,000.

LEAVES WIFE, CHILD

Through his boxing activities and other investments Rickard is believed to have amassed a fortune of several million dollars. He owns cattle ranches in South America and controls a majority of the stock in Madison Square Garden Corporation.

Rickard's chief delight in his promotional ventures came through the attraction of society to the bouts he promoted. In 1921 he staged a lightweight title match between Ritchie Mitchell and Benny Leonard for charity with the aid of several society leaders and ever since had viewed with deep satisfaction the presence of the socially prominent at his major attractions.

Several years ago, Rickard became interested in property in Miami Beach, Fla., and spent his vacations there. He bought a home two years ago, a private yacht, and planned to live, golf and fish in the South after his retirement. He is survived by his second wife, the former Maxine Hodges, whom he married at Lewisburg, W. Va., October 10, 1926, and one daughter, Maxine, aged 3. His first wife died in 1925.

PROBE MAKES NATION SAFE FOR BLOCS

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Anyone who says the Boston baseball bribery probe is not serving a useful purpose lies. Hasn't it given us back the old familiar "bloc" for the headlines?

And the Boston accounts all refer to the councilmen as councilors. What do you make of that, Dr. Watson?

Jack Dempsey is the heavyweight champion, according to Bill Muldoon, of the New York commission. Which classic remark doesn't surprise anyone familiar with the commission's penchant for being funny.

Now that Ace Hudkins again has qualified to box Joe Dundee for the welterweight title, the New York Commission continues to wax humorous by reinstating Dundee on condition that he meet Young Jack Thompson, who has been shellacked by Jackie Fields since stopping Dundee in a non-title bout.

Just when Roy Riegels shows us the great possibilities of the fumble as a spectacle, the football rule-makers get together to eliminate them.

What we need, obviously, is more Riegels and less rules doctors.

Ace Hudkins bosses his own corner. Has three seconds, but allows only one of them to speak to him between rounds and doesn't pay any attention to him. Which is why he wins.

Texas Boxing Commission will issue the permits for future football games in its territory. All games will be played under National Boxing Association rules.

Riegels' boner so far has been responsible for the digging up of only 239 incorrect versions of the famous Merkle play.

From the Veteran Athletes' Association of Philadelphia we learn that Pitt's basketball team won the National championship last season. We can hardly wait to be informed anent the identity of the horseshoe pitching champion.

The rassling racket still is itself. There are a lot of "butts" about that Strangler Lewis-Gus Sonnenberg bout that require explaining.

Sonnenberg is another Monte Munn, a collegian who has sealed the grappling heights via Strangler Lewis. Munn picked up the Strangler and threw him out of the ring. Sonnenberg butted him outside until Lewis quit.

After Munn wore out his box office value as a college boy champion, the rassling men said, "Ah, he always was a bum—but he got the dough." The title eventually reverted to Lewis. Maybe the gag will work again with Billygoat Gus.

Before they found out he could fight, the "new Dempsey" was Max Schmelling. Now he's "Schmelling." It seems Joe Sekyra knocked the "I" out of him, but lost the decision.

They'll remember the late Tex Rickard long after the men he made kings of their realm are forgotten. Here was a man who brought the sport of boxing up to his own level in greatness. He would have been a leader in any line.

Lost My Best Pal, Dempsey Says Of Rickard

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 7.—(AP.)—"I've lost the best pal I ever had."

That was the comment of Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, on the death of Tex Rickard.

It was not Dempsey, mauler of men, who spoke, but a highly nervous, unstrung man, grieved and bewildered at the abrupt loss of the hand that had guided him through difficulties and over the rough spots of his career.

"Tex has been my best pal for 21 years," the former champion said. "He was a great man and the most loyal friend a man could have. His word was better than a gold bond. He never went back on it."

Tex Rickard, Ring Midas, Made Million-Dollar Gates

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

Boxing and the sports world have lost their greatest promoter and showman in the death, at Miami Beach, Fla., yesterday, of George L. (Tex.) Rickard—the maker of champions.

Rickard rose to world fame from the humble start of a cowpuncher in Texas and later a prospector in the gold fields of Alaska and Nevada.

His career in the sports world was marked principally by his fearless gambling with fate.

He created the era of million-dollar gates and huge purses for boxers, and the new Madison Square Gardens in New York and Boston stand as monuments to his financial genius.

A veritable Midas, Rickard encountered "pay dirt" almost all along the line until last summer, when he is reputed to have lost approximately $100,000 on his open-air lightweight championship bout between Sammy Mandell and Jimmy McLarnin in New York, and some $300,000 more in promoting Gene Tunney's farewell bout with Tom Heeney. He attributed these reverses to a series of postponements of the Mandell fight, due to inclement weather, and the inroads of radio in connection with the Tunney bloomer.

Arranging Title Bout

When he was fatally stricken he was arranging another heavyweight spectacle in a series of elimination bouts to determine Tunney's successor, between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling, scheduled for late next month. Despite the drop in gate receipts in boxing generally, the intrepid promoter again was offering the boxers fancy emoluments and was predicting the bout would draw receipts of $500,000.

Rickard first came into prominence a quarter of a century ago when he startled the boxing world with a large guarantee for a lightweight championship match between Battling Nelson and Joe Gans at Goldfield, Nev. The match was arranged for the purpose of booming the town and "placing it on the map."

Staged "Jeffries' Doom"

Rickard dropped out of the boxing industry after this bout, returning in 1910 as the promoter of Jim Jeffries' "comeback" bout against Jack Johnson, which Johnson won, at Reno, Nev., again setting up a new record purse. He also refereed this bout.

Tex's next boxing venture came in 1916, when he staged a 10-round no-decision bout between Jess Willard conqueror of Johnson, and Frank Moran, of Pittsburgh, in old Madison Square Garden, New York.

With the legalizing of boxing under the Walker Law later, he took over Madison Square Garden and became the world's outstanding promoter.

Battle of Century

His "Battle of the Century" between Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier, at Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City, was a classic bit of high-pressure promoting that drew more than $1,600,000 and netted him a large profit. He staged all of Dempsey's important matches, including the one in which the "Manassa Mauler" won the championship from the giant Willard at Toledo, in July, 1919.

He went over the $2,000,000 mark in receipts with his Dempsey-Tunney return bout at Soldier's Field, Chicago, in 1927. In 1926, he approached that figure with the first Dempsey-Tunney meeting at the Sesqui-Centennial Stadium in Philadelphia, Tunney's purse for the return bout was just a little shy of a "cool million."

Rickard was a cold, shrewd man in his business dealings, but he had vision and the gambler's instinct. When Billy Brady, the theatrical producer of New York, and Charles Cochran, of London, became fearful of the success of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight and pulled out of partnership with him, Tex went it alone, with a guarantee of $500,000 to the principals and an otherwise heavy overhead, and came out with the biggest profit he made on any fight, Dempsey had a guarantee of $300,000 and Carpentier one of $200,000.

Was Quiet Type.

Always the showman in his dealings with the public, Rickard was a quaint, though sophisticated, character. He was given to peculiar and old-fashioned expressions, such as "feller" for fellow, and was not of a talkative nature except when excited or in a reminiscent mood.

He liked to chew on the end of a cigar and almost always carried a cane. His existence was varied. From his cow-puncher days he graduated into the proprietorship of saloons and gambling halls in the halcyon days of the Nevada and Nome gold rushes and then went on to greatness as a promoter. He was a famous character in Alaska. Rickard gained his nickname of "Tex" from his native state—Texas. His real name was George Lewis Rickard. He called Wichita Falls home, and returned there in later years to form a partnership in the oil fields with one Dan Hardy, a friend of his cow-punching days. When he left to make his headquarters in New York he sold out his interests in Texas to Hardy for a comparatively small sum, and Hardy later realized a fortune on the deal.

Tex also was interested in a cattle ranch in the Argentine prior to coming back to the boxing game to stay.

Shortly after the death of his wife, a few years ago, Rickard remarried. His second wife was Maxine Hodges, a show girl, and a daughter of this marriage, Maxine Texas Rickard, was the pride of the promoter's life.

Name A Trademark.

Rickard's name in connection with a boxing match came to bear the value of a trademark, and was one to conjure with. If Rickard was promoting the show, the fans took it for granted it was a worth-while venture and patronized it liberally, even at exorbitant prices. In the end he found plenty of wealthy men who were willing to back his enterprises, so that he did not have to risk his own money. His personal fortune at the time of his death was variously estimated at between $2,000,000 and $4,000,000.

Death overtook this colorful figure at the age of 59 years, which he lived to their fullest. He celebrated his last birthday three days before he succumbed. Just whom his successor will be in the realm of boxing promotion time alone will reveal. At the moment, however, the outstanding candidate would appear to be Humbert Fugazy, the Italian banker of New York, who has provided stiff competition for Rickard, despite a heavy financial loss, during the last few years.

Tex's Northern Saloon Is Recalled

TONOPAH, Nev., Jan. 7.—(AP.)—Tex Rickard came to the Nevada gold fields in 1903 to retrieve his fortune which had been impaired by a streak of bad luck at Nome, Alaska.

Rickard threw together the framework of "The Northern" saloon at Crook and Main streets, and with Ole Elliott and Kid Highley, he reproduced the gambling houses he had owned in Dawson and Nome.

"The Northern" resort was the scene of what old-timers said were the greatest gambling plays ever witnessed on the desert. "The sky" was the limit, and promoters and "wildcatters" were said to have "got all the excitement they craved," frequently laying $10,000 on the turn of a card.

Eight bartenders were employed on a shift, making 24 for each day. Each man drew $12 from the till and paid himself as he went off shift. More than 50 dealers were employed, and visitors said champagne flowed more freely than water.

FIRPO LAUDS PROMOTER

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight Tex Rickard brought back from South America in 1923 to create a sensation in fistic circles, was visibly affected when informed by the Associated Press of the promoter's death.

"Rickard was a man in whom I place the utmost trust," the erstwhile Wild Bull of the Pampas said. "The world has lost the foremost figure in boxing circles and the game has suffered a great blow."

Firpo intimated that his plans for a comeback in the United States may be abandoned because of Rickard's death.

"LEADER"—DESCAMPS

PARIS, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—French boxing circles mourned the death of Tex Rickard. "He was the greatest boxing promoter in history," said Francois Descamps, manager of Georges Carpentier, the French idol, who once fought Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight title under Rickard's direction. "And that goes for Georges, too."

The extent of Rickard's reputation throughout France could be seen from the attention given his death in newspapers. Not only morning sport papers, but the so-called political journals featured his passing. The "Echo Des Sports" has devoted its leading article today to Rickard.

Chicago Bouts Off As Tribute to Tex

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—(INS.)—Mique Malloy, Chicago promoter, today announced that his boxing show, scheduled for White City Arena tonight, had been postponed until next Monday on account of the death of Tex Rickard. Malloy will leave tonight for New York to attend the Rickard funeral.

JACKETS BATTLE PANTHERS HERE TOMORROW

By JESS CARVER

BELIEVE it or not, there isn't a thing doing in the way of college basketball in this entire section tonight. Muskingum has come and gone, though, thank goodness, the Muskies didn't knock everything they played hereabout for one of those well-known loops this year.

Duquesne played pretty good basketball in the second half against the Muskies Saturday night. They won the ball game by a decisive score, but had to go at top speed after the intermission.

Carnegie Tech is home again after having dropped a pair on a short road trip. The Tartans will meet Geneva out in the Tech gym tomorrow evening in the home opener. Waynesburg and West Virginia booted the Plaid around over the week end. Tech hopes to end a 13 game losing streak by spilling the Covenanters here.

JACKETS HERE TOMORROW

Waynesburg will show its wares in Pittsburgh out in the stadium pavilion tomorrow night opposed to Pitt. This game was booked last week when Doc Carlson figured his boys needed more work. On Friday Pitt will play Tech in the first game of the annual three-game city series.

Two Tri-State Conference games are listed for the week, Thiel meeting Geneva Thursday and the Dukes and Westminster hitching up in a classic on Friday.

There is evidently some unexpected strength in the Big Ten. Michigan, rated poorly prior to Saturday's opening games, knocked off Northwestern. Chicago displayed power in beating the crack Butler College team. Minnesota proved to be tougher for Wisconsin than the Badgers figured. Iowa ran rough shod over Ohio State, but who hasn't? Purdue toppled Illinois as was expected.

FROTH

Did you ever hear Zip Brickley tell about his jizzle? . . . Or better still, did you ever ride in it? . . . J. Freund and dog were visitors in the office Sunday . . . Herman Schmidt dropped in also . . . The dog remained . . . Tech's basketball team is consistent to say the least . . . Muskingum packed 'em in up at the Dukes Saturday night . . . and Coach Lang kept his hat off to give the boys a treat . . . Doc Carlson is planning a tea for the newspaper boys following the Pitt-Waynesburg game tomorrow . . . Tea, I said . . . Just about 300 more shopping days till Xmas.

World Is Shocked At Tex's Passing

triumph in the Tunney-Dempsey championship match, is mourning the death of the sports impresario.

Every one connected with sports, from boxing promoters to boxers, wrestlers and other professionals, united to pay tribute to him.

Dave Barry, who refereed the Tunney-Dempsey battle, which drew 148,000 spectators and a record gate of $2,880,000, at the giant stadium of Soldier Field on September 22, 1927, voiced the opinion of scores. Barry's tribute was:

"The sports world and boxing in particular, has lost probably the greatest single force it has ever known in the death of Rickard. His place will be difficult to fill. To Rickard goes the honor of having the forethought which thousands of promoters never had. He raised boxing and other sports from a small field to that of a big business and made it cleaner while doing it. He was the first promoter to offer a $100,000 purse; he was the first to offer a $1,000,000 purse and he was the first to offer one of $1,000,000. And his vast vision was rewarded."

"It is just another indication of the amazing genius of that remarkable man," said Paul Prehn, president of the National Boxing Association and chairman of the Illinois State Athletic Commission.

"Everything Tex Rickard touched was done completely. His loss is a tremendous blow to boxing and who can replace him is a question for time to show, if it can."

George Getz, Chicago sportsman who aided Rickard in promoting the Tunney-Dempsey match, lauded the promoter as a man whose "uprightness supplies the proper that supported modern boxing."

"I have never worked with any man just like him," said Getz. "Tex Rickard was honest and his integrity, coupled with an astonishing ability, won him his success. His spoken word was his bond. His touch brought boxing from the hidden ways to the plane of honest business, his loss is a tremendous blow to boxing."

JUNIOR TITLE BOUTS BEGIN TONIGHT

With almost 80 aspiring youngsters in the entry list, the annual Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U. junior championship boxing tournament will get under way in the Motor Square Garden ring tonight, when the preliminaries will be fought. The semi-finals and finals will be reserved for tomorrow night. The first bout each night is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

Dominick Profio, of Cecil, boxes Steve O'Malley, of Bellaire, O., in the eight-round windup of a show at the Washington (Pa.) Gardens tonight. In other bouts on the card, Max Ziff, local Jewish lightheavyweight, meets Maello Sala, of Donora; Joe Sala, brother of Maello, boxes Harry Spencer, of Washington, and Harold Hellman, of Donora, opposes Harry Haggerty, of Lawrenceville in six-rounders, while Tuffy Damaio, of Bellaire, will meet Scotty Graham, of Donora, in the four-round opener.

he ever played, established what is believed still to be a record for time, requiring six hours and forty-five minutes.

CONCANNON, in his present work, is attempting to show those who play pocket billiards the fundamentals on which they must build to make real progress at the game. Proper position at the table, the correct bridge and the right way of holding the cue at the butt are the neglected points that retard many promising players, Concannon says. Difficult shot-making should not be the aim of the beginner, Joe explains, citing that the secret of proficiency is control of the cue ball, so as to have the maximum of easy shots. Even those who play fairly well after years of haphazard play will readily improve by changing to the correct style, Concannon contends.

DO YOUR SHARE IN PREVENTING THE SPREAD OF INFLUENZA

The influenza epidemic, though not so virulent as in 1918, is claiming many victims. To assist in waging a successful campaign against it health officials of many centers have issued warnings and given out many common sense precautionary measures. Get plenty of sleep and as much fresh air as possible. Exercise regularly. Avoid crowds whenever possible. Eat only wholesome food. These are ways of building up bodily resistance to disease.

Many have found Vapex an invaluable aid in warding off influenza, grippe and colds of all kinds. It is extremely simple and pleasant to use. Get Vapex from your druggist, in the little square bottle and the package with the green triangle. Put a drop on your handkerchief. Breathe the vapor deeply through the nose. It keeps the head clear, prevents contagion, and will stop a cold at the start. Vapex may be used frequently, anywhere. The strength of one application lasts for an entire day. Vapex is recommended especially for all those who must mingle regularly with crowds.

FOX PLANS BIG THEATER HERE

Plans for the erection of a new Pittsburgh theater and combination office building have been announced by William Fox, president of the Fox Theaters Corporation. The large office building and "super-type" motion picture theater will be erected within a year, according to the announcement made in New York last night. The site of the structure was not disclosed.

Mr. Fox in his announcement said that the company had already selected sites and in 1929 would erect theaters in Baltimore, Boston, Los Angeles, Cleveland and Chicago, as well as Pittsburgh. The Fox corporation recently opened large office buildings and theaters in Brooklyn, Detroit and Washington. Similar buildings are under construction in St. Louis, Atlanta and San Francisco.

The announcement said that tremendous properties had been purchased in Boston, Newark, Philadelphia and New York, in the very heart of the cities and modern office buildings, with the "super-type" of motion picture houses, would shortly be under construction. Negotiations for properties of a similar character are being completed in Los Angeles and Cleveland and will be followed by the same type of buildings in Pittsburgh, Baltimore and Chicago.

CHINESE FLIER VISITS CITY

Touring the United States to study all phases of aviation, Tien Lai Haung, Chinese aviator, is in Pittsburgh today. Late this afternoon Haung, a graduate of Syracuse and Columbia Universities, is scheduled to speak before the Women's Club of Sewickley, at a meeting in the Sewickley High School. The visitor is a member of the advisory board of the Chinese Aeronautical Bureau.

In an interview yesterday, Haung said that China was developing along aviation lines and that the government was financing the building of airports, air lines and schools for pilots. Both the men and women of his country want to fly, he said, and there is a great opportunity for American pilots to teach his people.

The visitor has flown 9,000 miles in the last few months, traveling from one city to another in his own airplane. Because of adverse flying conditions he came here from Washington by train. He plans to fly to Louisville today. He said he was planning to make a flight, with two companions, from Los Angeles to Shanghai.

FIRE DESTROYS TWO HOUSES IN ROSS TWP.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

BY HAVEY J. BOYLE

IN THE Point district, in Limerick (in the West End), and in certain parts of the upper South Side there are still old-time Irishmen who speak of "the night of the big wind." The younger generation has almost come to believe that "the big wind" was a bit of Irish whimsicality, but as a matter of fact yesterday was the anniversary of the big wind in Ireland.

It occurred on January 6, 1839, and swept Ireland with a ferocity that still has descendants of eye-witnesses talking. The big wind caused no loss of life, but it moved houses and trees helter-skelter.

Strange, that the Irish of Pittsburgh never have staged an observation of such an anniversary. Nothing could be more appropriate than a great sweep of oratory to recall the night of the big wind.

WILLIAM KENMUIR, who contributes to the house organ of the Dravo Contracting Company, kindly sends a copy of the publication which shows a paragraph recalling that in the long ago the author of this column once served as an office boy for that firm. Yes, and my departure broke up many intimate friendships. How I remember those days when F. R. Dravo, president of the firm, would say: "Hello, boy," and I'd follow up the conversation by saying: "Good morning, Mr. Dravo," as Mr. Dravo rushed out of sight. And then the next morning we'd pick up the conversation again with Mr. Dravo saying: "Good morning, boy," and I'd suggest as my part of the conversation: "Good morning." After all, as I always say, the old days are the best.

In a downtown shirt shop a customer said he was looking for what he described in the current idiom as "hot shirts." "These are rather tame," said the honest proprietor, "but come around next week and I'll have some real hot ones for you." Wait a minute now; don't crowd so much. Here it is: The next week there was a fire in the place.

HERE is an invitation to a bridge game which the host sent around.

At Five O'clock We'll Take a Shot;
At Bridge We Then Will play.
At Six the Dinner Should Be Hot,
At Twelve We're On Our Way.
Is it necessary to know who received such an invitation?

In Federal Court recently the column sat and listened to two young men as opposing counsel arguing over certain niceties of the case. There was a better story in the personalities of the counsel than in the case.

Zeno Fritz, assistant Federal district attorney, on behalf of the government, was pretty certain the defendant ought to be put in jail. Zeno Fritz started working in the Federal Building as a telephone operator and librarian. He studied law in the meanwhile and was admitted to the bar. He was succeeded in his job by Thomas Whitten, who also studied law—but you have guessed it now—Fritz and Whitten were the opposing counsel on that day in Federal Court.

INCIDENTALLY, a new building for the Federal Court can't come too soon. Plaster falling off the wall in the present hall of justice certainly is not in keeping with the majesty and dignity of the Federal Court.

I suppose if this paragraph ever gets to Washington there will be quite a scurrying around to get the new project started. But they have only themselves to blame. The column has waited pretty long before voicing its indignation in this way. I always say procrastination is the thief of time.

Nature students could not understand the panic of rabbits in our nearby woods the other day and the mystery was not cleared up until it was announced that on next Friday night the annual banquet of the Pittsburgh magicians is to be held.

APARTMENT HEARING NEAR

The ordinance authorizing the erection of an apartment building at Fifth and Morewood avenues, which aroused the ire of residents of the exclusive Morewood avenue residential district, comes up for a hearing before Council Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The identity of those behind the project is still carefully concealed, although it is known that Attorney A. C. Leslie is counsel for backers of the plan. Opponents of the invasion have already organized and retained counsel to fight the plan, should it be approved by Council. Attorneys Wallace, Patterson and Collin have been retained and it has been announced that the proposal will be contested on the ground that it is unconstitutional under both state and Federal constitutions.

The committee contends that it is fighting the fight of all home owners, large and small, in the city. The site of the proposed apartment fronts 180 feet on Fifth avenue and 350 feet on Morewood avenue. It is owned by the E. M. Ferguson estate, and is surrounded by some of the handsomest homes and private grounds in the city. The zoning ordinance, the committee says, puts the district in Class C, which limits the use of the property to one-family residences.

The committee opposing the project consists of C. E. Arensberg, Norman F. Brown, A. E. Braun, Frank B. Bell, Grant Curry, George L. Collord, Harvey L. Childs, John F. Casey, George H. Flinn, John G. Frazer, E. W. Gwinner, J. M. Guffey, J. H. Millman, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William M. Hall, Nathaniel Holmes, T. Clifton Jenkins, A. M. Moreland, E. W. Mudge, George S. Oliver, John L. Porter, Dawson Painter, Mrs. Wallace Rowe, J. King Scott, C. H. E. Succop, A. M. Scully, J. B. Shea, W. P. Snyder, Jr., C. L. Snowdon, Henry W. Wasson, John McCalmont Wilson, and C. Holmes Wolfe.

LILLIAN HERRON AT AIR COLLECTOR

Miss Lillian Herron, Mellon Institute for Industrial Research, here demonstrates an air collector used by the institute for measuring the extent of atmospheric pollution. Grime, soot and cinders are collected in the basin, washed into the bottle, then taken out, weighed and chemically analyzed. By the use of these collectors it was learned that particles of matter rain upon Pittsburgh at the rate of 69,800 tons a year. Less than one per cent is tar, indicative of black smoke.

VOLUNTEERS BATTLE BLAZE

Two Ross township homes were destroyed early yesterday in spite of several bucket brigades formed by Pittsburgh firemen and volunteers from Ross township and Mt. Troy. The fire fighters were unable to use more efficient methods, the nearest fire plug being more than a half mile away. Both dwellings were burned to the ground, city firemen said.

The houses destroyed were in Morrison avenue near Ivory street and were owned by U. Scardamilia, of Bensonia avenue and J. Ringheimer of Ingomar. The fire is believed to have originated in the house owned by Scardamalia, which had been rented Saturday but which was not yet occupied. Some one is believed to have started a fire to dry out the house.

CHURCH PLANS NEW BUILDING

The congregation of the Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church is planning to build a new edifice and already is prepared to start the $200,000 campaign for the initial unit. The new church will have an auditorium to seat 800, it was announced yesterday at the morning service. The congregation has been meeting for the last eight months in the Harris South Hills Theater in Dormont, owing to the crowded condition in the old building in Alabama avenue.

The new building is to be on the site of the present church, which is to be razed as the financial campaign gets under way. Louis C. Clark is general chairman of the fund-raising committee. The congregation now numbers 650, an increase of more than 150 since last March.

SMOKE DIMS SPIRITUAL VISION, PASTOR DECLARES

A sunless city must inevitably weaken the capacity of its citizens for spritual vision, the Rev. Dr. Robert MacGowan, pastor of Bellefield Presbyterian Church, Oakland, declared in his morning sermon yesterday.

"We know all about smoke screens in Pittsburgh," he said. "The Smoky City once again is living up to her reputation. The Ohio Valley resembles a tunnel these mid-winter days, and sunshine is at a premium. Ours is a beautiful city, but who on earth would know it when the mirrors of the sky have lost their luster? It is a healthy city; but could we convince an outsider after viewing seven or eight columns of death notices in the daily press? It is a city of sages, for science is building her throne in the wonderful research laboratories of Pittsburgh; but will the world believe us when they find us still mantled in soot, and peering through the fog like spirits in prison?

"For days at a time, in certain seasons, we live under a smoke screen with only an occasional day of relief. Can nothing be done about it? It is vain to tell us that smoke is the incense of industry. Like every other great city we must be prepared to take one share of the dirt that accompanies industry. Indeed Pittsburghers must be ready to suffer beyond the ordinary because of the valleys that hug the smoke with the tenacity of a bear. But all these considerations should only be added incentives to councillors, scientists and citizens alike to make a united effort to rid ourselves of conditions that menace the health and happiness of the people.

"If I write as a poet, it is only that I may see better. What a crime that the heart should have to languish so long without the fellowship of God's sunlight. Where there is no vision, the people perish, said the ancient prophet, and a sunless city must inevitably weaken the capacity of its citizens for spiritual vision.

"They tell me that on the outskirts of the city the sun is on the job through the regulation hours. Well, we cannot all live in the suburbs, and down in the Golden Triangle we travel in millions. Then let us start to clean up. If only in the interests of spiritual vision, let us make a determined effort to take the smoke out of the eyes of the city in this age of rapid changes, when sight is the first necessity of mankind."

Judge Rules $500 Award Should Be Cut

E. Frank Reynolds, Mt. Washington, awarded $500 damages in a suit against two collectors of the Nielen Company, must take a less amount or a new trial will be granted, according to an opinion handed down by Judge James H. Gray, of Common Pleas Court.

The collectors, it was alleged, called at the Reynolds home to collect on a chair. An argument ensued. Mrs. Reynolds alleged the men hurt her wrist and knee while she endeavored to keep them from forcing their way into the house. A jury awarded her $1,000 damages and her husband $500. Judge Gray sets forth that the verdict as to the wife is not excessive, but believes that $250 is sufficient for the husband.

VOTERS LOOK TO PRIMARY

With the national election out of the way, voters of Wilkinsburg already are looking forward to primaries to be held next September, when they will be called upon to name candidates for burgess, five members of council, tax collector, justice of the peace and two members of the school board.

In addition to the primary, it is probable a special election will be held during the summer to pass on the charter for the proposed metropolitan plan for Allegheny county.

How District Would Look

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph photographer and artist show here how the corner at Fifth and Morewood avenues would look if the proposed apartment building were to be erected there to the height of 10 stories, shown proportionate in this cosmograph to the residences. Upon proposal in City Council by Councilman Daniel Winters to authorize the erection of this apartment building on the Ferguson estate in the midst of this district of fine homes, residents of the neighborhood were aroused to the point of banding and retaining counsel to fight erection of the structure as in violation of the zoning ordinance, which classifies the area as a C district in which only one-family structures are permitted. The building is planned to face 180 feet along Fifth avenue and 350 feet along Morewood, which would include the property on which the Ferguson house (shown at extreme left) now stands.

Two South Side Couples Ask Divorce

Magdalena Baker, 205 Zara street, has filed a libel in divorce in Common Pleas Court against Albert E. Baker. The couple separated two years ago.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.

The world is full of men who do big things, but when you meet 'em they are not outstanding personalities. Pretty near everybody is almost alike.

Tex Rickard was one of the very few outstanding personalities of our time. It's a loss that we didn't have his autobiography written by himself.

He was a character. I wouldn't a-missed knowing him for anything.

Yours, WILL.

News and Views of Screenland and Notes About Stage Bills

CLARA BOW HERALDED FILM'S MOST POPULAR STAR IN MONEY VOTE

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7.

THE most accurate estimate of a movie star's popularity is the box office. People pay to see their favorites on the screen. The more they pay, the greater the demand from picture showmen for films starring some particular player. So the results of a nation-wide poll of exhibitors taken annually by the theater men's trade paper is of special interest.

This year the star most in demand at the box office is Clara Bow, who comes under the wire a winner with Colleen Moore a close second. Last year Colleen was first, Clara second, Bebe Daniels third, Laura La Plante fourth and Norma Shearer fifth. This year, however, Billie Dove beats Bebe for third place, Bebe being fourth, and Dolores Del Rio fifth.

Among the masculine stars Lon Chaney jumps from third place last year to first. Tom Mix, last year's leader, is second now, and John Gilbert is third. Then in a neck and neck race come Harold Lloyd, Richard Dix, William Haines and Dick Barthelmess. Dix has dropped a place since last year when he came in fourth. Lloyd jumps from sixth last year to fourth this year. The late Fred Thomson held second position in the last poll.

It is interesting to notice that Hoot Gibson and Ken Maynard rank before Doug Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin. Charlie, in fact, occupying sixteenth place. This is perhaps because Doug's and Charlie's pictures come so few and far between. It may also indicate that the western stars still retain their popularity in the small towns.

Although Jack Gilbert is strong in third place, Greta Garbo runs behind Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, Laura La Plante and Janet Gaynor. And these all follow Marion Davies, who ran a brilliant race and ended neck and neck with Mary Pickford and Dolores Del Rio.

Lina Basquette Marries Today

LINA BASQUETTE will become Mrs. John Peverell Morley. The couple will wed at All Saints' Church this morning. On the license the bride's age is stated as 21, while "Pev" is 28. Neither of them looks so aged. Right now nothing matters to Lina except "Pev." "I'm in a new business now—or soon will be," says Lina, "and I am going to devote all my time and energy to the business of being Mrs. Morley." But after the honeymoon Lina's friends believe she will continue the screen career so well begun. June Collyer, her pal, is back from a New York vacation to act as bridesmaid. Incidentally, June has been cast for the girl role in "The Grouch Bag," which Irving Cummings will direct for Fox.

When you see Douglas Fairbanks' new picture, "The Iron Mask," notice that on the credit list will appear "Adaptation," by Elton Thomas. Elton Thomas also fixed up "The Three Musketeers" and other Fairbanks stories for the screen. After seeing one of his pictures, a Hollywood producer thought Elton was just about the best writer of screen stories he had ever heard about and wired a remunerative offer for his services. The kick is that Elton Thomas is Doug himself. Which reminds us that Ethel Barrymore's plays are sometimes directed by E. M. Blythe, who is Ethel. Blythe is the real name of the Barrymores.

WINNERS AND LEADERS :-: IN POPULARITY :-: AT THE BOX OFFICE

Marion Davies, along with Mary Pickford, just missed fifth feminine place, which goes to Dolores Del Rio by the proverbial shade.

John Gilbert is third among the men, second place having been taken by Tom Mix, who led the procession just a year ago.

Carroll Nye In "The Squall"

CARROLL NYE is wishing himself a "Happy New Year" today on the strength of having been signed as the hero of First National's picturization of "The Squall." The film is an adaptation of the sensational Broadway play and will be directed by Alexander Korda. The big favorite of yesterday, George Hackathorne, has an important part, and Richard Tucker is also in it. The ladies in the case are Alice Joyce and Myrna Loy.

Lon Chaney is all ready to begin shooting "Jungle" as soon as some youngster is signed to play the "young love interest." From where I sit it looks very much as though the boy will be Lloyd Hughes, who has been acquitting himself very creditably in each of the roles he has played. Estelle Taylor and Lupe Velez have the feminine leads.

Real Sweeties Wed in Picture

ONE of the greatest stunts ever suggested has been offered Metro by Harrison Carroll, conductor of a local movie column. It concerns Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Joan Crawford, and the Metro film, "Our Modern Maidens." In the picture Doug and Joan wed. Carroll suggests that the marriage be made a real one so that all the movie fans in the world may see the union of these popular favorites. Of course, you know, the couple is engaged. In fact, folks say that Joan and her "Dodo," as she calls him, are already married.

One wonders what the persons who title pictures would do without the words "young" and "love" and "kiss" and "sin" and a few more. Eliminate these from movie vocabularies and we'd probably have pictures named after Pullman cars. All of which is suggested by the title of "Buddy" Rogers' next-but-one film. It is to be called "Young Sinners."

DEATH LEAVES 8 DESTITUTE

Twins were born to Mrs. Lillian Frederick nine days ago, joining five older brothers and sisters in the little home at 1113 Lamont street, North Side. On Saturday her husband, Jesse, died a victim of influenza. Now the family must be separated, some of the children going to a home, as the mother cannot care for them properly.

The nine-day old babies are boys. They have two older brothers, Jesse and Lysle, 7, also twins. There are three girls, Lillian, 9; Lucille, 5, and Catherine, 1. The mother says she wants to keep the girls with her, but the boys must be sent away.

The husband contracted influenza Christmas week, but kept working and did not complain of his illness. Saturday morning he returned home at 10:30 o'clock. Six hours later he was dead. Mrs. Frederick is suffering a heavy cold and the nine-day-old babes also are suffering colds. The father will be buried Wednesday morning from St. Andrew's Catholic Church.

New Cabinet Officer To Dry Up U.S. Urged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(A.P.)—The pledges of Herbert Hoover to uphold the prohibition law were praised yesterday at a mass meeting held under the auspices of the national united committee for law enforcement for the purpose of launching a campaign against bootleggers and speakeasies to "prepare" Washington for his incoming administration.

The creation of a new cabinet portfolio and government department to be known as the Department of Public Welfare, to take charge of all the prohibition enforcement activities, was proposed by Clinton N. Howard, of Rochester, N. Y., chairman of the committee.

Agnes Lynch, Film Player, Weds Actor

PLAY TONIGHT IS NEW DRAMA

Opening tonight in the Nixon, for one week only, "Gypsy," a new play by Maxwell Anderson, will be presented with Claiborne Foster featured in the title role. Miss Foster achieved Broadway success in "The Patsy" last season. "Gypsy" is not a play of a gypsy girl but of a girl with a gypsy heart.

Tonight in the Pitt, theatergoers will be mystified by the magic of Thurston, who comes to Pittsburgh with an entire new production. This year Mr. Thruston has an added attraction in the appearance of his daughter, Jane, as co-star with her father for the first time. In addition to her own singing and dancing specialties, she does a joint magic act with Mr. Thurston.

Reid Jaynes, long popular in the orchestra pit of the Davis, is back again in the Smithfield street vaudeville house as director of the orchestra playing for the two-a-day Keith-Albee-Orpheum vaudeville now being presented there. This week's bill will be headlined by Will Fyffe, Scotch character comedian.

Beginning Monday evening, January 14, the attraction in the Nixon Theater will be a musical comedy, "Echoes of 1929," starring Tommy "Bozo" Snyder.

Gus Van and Joe Schenck, international favorites of the musical comedy and vaudeville stages, and long known as the "pennant winning battery of songland," will be the headliners of the two-a-day Keith-Albee-Orpheum vaudeville in the Davis next week. They will top a nine-act bill.

AMUSEMENTS.

HIS DAD A CROSSPATCH

Faulty digestion may kill children's love

The father whose stomach is constantly at war with itself often scolds and punishes his children undeservedly. If he knew how bitterly they remember his abuse he would change his disposition by giving attention to his digestion.

If the father of your children is a victim of stomach trouble, urge him to take, before each meal, a tablespoonful of Triner's Bitter Wine, the pleasant tonic laxative made of California wine, cascara and medicinal herbs. Then mark the change in him—the quick return of his natural good humor and appetite. Potatoes and other starchy foods yield quickly to this different digestant. At all druggists—75c and $1.25.

"NANCY DEANE" by ROYL. FOLEY

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Nancy Deane, golden haired, dark-eyed, has been brought up by the O'Days in the town of Washington, Pa.; she is really the daughter of Montague Deane and Julie Abbott, the former the disinherited son of one of the richest families in Pittsburgh, but she is unaware of this relationship. She loves the O'Days and works in the station lunch room to help them pay their rent. There she meets John Blair, an upstanding young man who helps her out of a difficulty and invites her to go to the circus. Although she is wary of men generally she recognizes that Blair is a gentleman and accepts. Nancy loses her job and goes home to find everything there upset. Mrs. O'Day tells her she's heard from her mother who's in town with the circus and wants to see the baby she deserted 18 years before. Nancy hears the true story of her parentage. She goes to the circus realizing her mother is a performer in the big show. Her mother is seriously hurt when she falls from tight-rope.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

THESE were the last coherent words of Julie Abbott. She died with the arms of the baby she had deserted 18 years ago about her neck.

The kneeling woman broke into loud sobs.

A strange company gathered about the grave of Julie Abbott that summer day. Nancy O'Day and Mrs. O'Day, the woman who had wept in the hospital room, a few troupers from the big top now established at Monessen, a handful of chronic funeralgoers, the Rev. Mr. Hemingway and John Blair.

Nancy clung to Mrs. O'Day; she didn't weep, no tears would come and she wondered if she were heartless. Julie's fellow trouper who had been with her when she died and who had collected money for flowers from the circus people stayed until the grave was closed. She had promised Julie if misfortune or death came to her she would see her through.

"I'm keeping my word," she said to Nancy at the funeral parlors. "I don't care if I lose my job and never see another circus. I'm staying right here to be sure Julie has everything. You're her daughter, but I was her friend. I knew her; you never did."

Nancy hadn't answered; there seemed nothing to say.

At the grave she heard the minister's words: "I am the Resurrection and the Life: The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away—in the midst of life we are in death—"

It all seemed like a dream. She looked at John Blair; he stood somewhat back from the grave hat in hand, the wind rumpling his shock of sun-burned hair. She wondered why he had come; then she remembered how she had run screaming from him at the circus and that she had not seen him since. The newspapers had been filled with the story of Julie's tragic death. She didn't have to explain.

That night Nancy sat down to the dining room table with Mud and Darry to go through the contents of the box left by Julie Abbott. Julie's friend had delivered it over to the O'Days when Julie died.

"It's all she left," she had said. "I think you should have it."

In the box Nancy found a wedding ring, and in the ring was the inscription "M. D. to J. A., Oct. 16, 1908."

A yellowed wedding certificate, a handful of gaudy jewelry, a tiny envelope in which Nancy found the tiniest bit of pale gold hair. She suspected that it might be from her own head, baby's hair.

The wedding certificate showed that Montgomery Deane, Jr., and Julie Abbott had been married at Wellsburg, W. Va.

"Wellsburg, is it?" grunted Darry O'Day. "You might be expectin—"

"Sh-s-s-s your talk now!" said Mrs. O'Day. "And be answerin' that door bell."

Darry did as he was commanded, and in a moment he came back into the dining room, John Blair towering over him.

"Sorry to intrude at this time," Blair said, "it's only that I'm leaving town tomorrow and I was wondering if there was anything I could do."

"I read the articles in the papers. They—it—"

Nancy knew what he meant. The papers had said that she was about the sole support of the O'Days, the sob sisters had elaborated on the struggle she was making to keep two old folks together—they even said that the furniture in the O'Day cottage was shabby. One reporter had said she was a beautiful Cinderella.

"Now if there's anything I can do I wish you would let me," Blair said.

"You can get me a job in Pittsburgh," Nancy answered, the words tumbling out before she realized what effect they might have on Mud and Darry. She was surprised at them herself, for up to that minute she had had hardly given a thought to a thing like that.

"You live in Pittsburgh, Mr. Blair. Don't you know someone down there who could give me a job?"

Her sudden request gave Blair a shock.

"That depends. What kind of a job?"

"Anything, anything at all," Nancy answered eagerly.

John Blair ran his fingers through his hair, thoughtfully, mussing it, and not seeming to care. He was no sheik. It occurred to Nancy. The way he mussed his hair seemed to give her an insight into the kind of a man he was.

Big, boyish, without vanity. The sort who would appeal to rich, rugged, bronzed. An outdoor man, surely, yet he had all the earmarks of culture, of one who used his brain as well as his muscles.

While he stood there pondering her question, Nancy thought how little she really knew about him. What his work was, what he was doing in Washington. She knew that his home was in Pittsburgh. He had told her that much on the way to the circus the night Julie Abbott had fallen. She knew he had been to college. He had played football. Was it Yale? Nancy couldn't remember. Her curiosity was aroused now, and while he stood rumpling his hair, she decided she must know more of him.

"A job? Would you find working in a factory—that is, in a knitting factory. I know a man who is managing the Wear-Ever Knitting Mills. That is, he's the head of it, really. Or will be. His father owns the mills."

"Will I? Oh, Mr. Blair!"

"Perhaps you could take a night course at Miss Brown's School of Business, and then, later, I could get you a job in some office."

In the excitement of the thought of going to Pittsburgh to work, Nancy lost her head completely. She jumped up and danced around the dining room table as though she was playing ring-around-the-rosy.

"Nancy!"

Mrs. O'Day's tone stopped her skipping as though she had been struck.

"Nancy, Colleen!"

Nancy had decided that she must know more of John Blair. Now, some three weeks later, on the eve of her departure to Pittsburgh, with a letter of recommendation and introduction to the manager of the Wear-Ever Knitting Mills, she had learned many things about him. He was doing field work for the New York Museum, studying Indian lore, and working with scientists exploring some of the famous Indian mounds in Washington county.

Achelogy was the word he used in connection with the work they were doing.

Nancy was only vaguely familiar with the word.

"Goodness, isn't it spooky?" she asked. "Besides, I thought that only near-sighted professors and old-ish men with wispy hair called themselves ar-arch—what do you call it—arch-e-l-o-g-i-s-t-s."

John Blair laughed. In these days since she had decided to leave Washington she had seen a great deal of him. Or rather he had made it a point to see a great deal of her, for he had called at the O'Day cottage nearly every evening. And in that time Nancy had learned to love his laugh. She enjoyed the way he threw back his head. She liked the gleam of his white teeth. He and Darry had become great friends, and John evidently enjoyed the O'Day household.

"A fine lad, that," Darry had said more than once, after John had spent an evening visiting with the three of them.

Mrs. O'Day kept her silence. One evening she read for sure what was in the heart of John Blair. She caught him studying Nancy, and Mrs. O'Day studied him.

"Oh God," she prayed that night, "be good to my Nancy. An' God, don't let her be poor. Don't let her marry no good for nothin'. Don't let her go marryin' anyone at all, yet—"

That night, at the very time Mud O'Day was praying, Nancy and John were sitting on a bench, not five blocks away, in the college campus. Faintly, through the trees, came the tinkle of a piano—it seemed so far away. Everything seemed distant, vague, to Nancy. Tomorrow she was leaving Washington, venturing out alone into a big world.

"Now that the time's really come, I'm kind of trembly," she said to John. "I think I'm afraid. I'm more of a coward than I thought I was."

A Winter Barrage -:- -:- By Fanny Darrell

CLEAR the field! It's time for the Winter barrage! And there's no limit to the range. So watch out, for you may be the first one to be hit! True, it will be only a snowball, but in the center of each you'll find—if you take the trouble to look—a wee, warm heart! And each snowball will find a target and hit the bull's eye every time.

Even Dan Cupid joins in the fun, for that is all it is, but it rapidly develops into a sure-fire barrage of Love. So, if you don't want Love, watch carefully for the barrage which will surely find you if you're not careful.

But you shouldn't seek to avoid it, for without it there can never be any true happiness for you. And you know 'way down in your heart that you want love, only up to now you've been scared to death of him. So when the soft snowball hits you plop! then you know that your heart's gone forever.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Touched by Marion's Generous Suggestion

I HAD finished dressing and was tiptoeing down the hall in the fear of awakening the members of the household who were not scheduled to take the train, when I met Marion again. She was coming from Mary Harrison's room, and her face was so grave that I wondered if she had found Mary ill. Before I could frame a question, she caught at my arm and put a quick low-voiced query.

"May I come into your room a minute, Auntie Madge? I want to tell you something."

"Of course," I returned, and at once walked back to my room with her. I saw that she found it difficult to phrase readily the thing she wished to tell me, and I tried to help her.

"You look troubled, dear," I told her. "Is there anything the matter with Mary?"

"I don't know," she said. "But something—I can't put my finger on it—makes me feel that she isn't a bit peppy about her trip. And when I asked her what she was going to buy she said, 'Not even a handkerchief!' And she said it as if she were terribly blue. I didn't say any more, but I got to thinking. Auntie Madge, how long is it since Mary bought any clothes?"

I looked at her startled.

"You've given me something to think about, Marion," I told her. "I don't believe she's bought anything for months."

"I know she hasn't, and Auntie Madge—" she was breath-takingly lovely as she looked at me with face flushed and eyes close to tears. "I feel as if I couldn't go in today and have all those pretty things bought for me with Mary not having anything. Won't you ask mother to cut my budget in half and see that Mary gets the rest?"

How like her mother she was! My memory unrolled numberless instances of Lillian's self-effacing generosity. But in the same breath came the recollection of the worried planning and self-denial on my friend's part which almost always had been the accompaniment of that generosity. If Marion were not curbed in her enthusiastic impulses I could see trouble ahead for her and her indulgent mother.

"That is very sweet of you, dear," I told her, giving her shoulder an affectionate little tap. "But stop just a minute and think that proposition over. Your mother has planned certain things for you, things which she wishes you to have, and which are necessary if you are to fit in with the school regime. She neither could nor would cut your budget in half, but you know if you spoke to her on the subject, she would try to buy Mary some things like yours no matter how much she had to deny herself to do it. If you want to deny yourself some one thing and give it to Mary, that will be all right, if you can persuade Mary to take it, which I doubt very much. But you must be just before you are generous, my dear. Don't sweetheart' I was clumsy, but I didn't mean to hurt you."

She dashed away the tears which had aroused my quick contrition, and threw her arms around me impulsively.

"You couldn't hurt me, Auntie Madge. Don't you know that? I'm just a silly jumping frog, never thinking where I'm going to light. I won't say a word to Mary unless you tell me to, and I won't worry. Mother about it until you find out whether it's all right to give Mary one of my new frocks."

"Mary will have some new things too. She'll buy them today never fear," I said. "But I shall have to think things out a minute or two. Will you please go down to the dining room and tell them not to wait breakfast for me? Tell Katie to put my breakfast on a plate and set it in the warming oven until I come. Then I won't have to wait a second."

She gave me a troubled glance, and I knew she would have liked to protest my decision. But the habit of obedience is strong with her and she went out of the room without a word, while I sat down for a quick consideration of the problem Marion's sympathetic heart had brought to me.

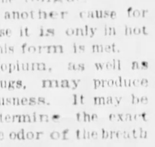
HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

First Aid Hints in Fainting or "Coma"

THERE are many causes for loss of consciousness, besides normal sleep. We describe this state as "coma." Coma, then, is protracted unconsciousness due to abnormal conditions. It is a state from which the victim cannot be aroused.



DR. COPELAND

Fainting differs from coma. It is temporary, disappearing quickly. In this there is great paleness of the face and very weak pulse.

In coma, in that form due to something seriously wrong with the brain, for instance, there may be loud breathing or actual snoring. This is the form of coma we have in apoplexy. The face may be purple or flushed, quite different from the appearance in fainting.

A hard blow on the head may produce loss of consciousness. The damage is due to disturbance of the brain.

The sudden attacks some persons have and which are popularly called "fits," are responsible for loss of consciousness. This type is known as epilepsy.

In epilepsy there is frothing at the mouth. There may be quite a bit of foam on the lips. This may be colored from the bleeding due to biting the tongue.

Sunstroke is another cause for coma. Of course it is only in hot weather that this form is met.

Alcohol and opium, as well as some other drugs, may produce loss of consciousness. It may be difficult to determine the exact drug, unless the odor of the breath reveals it.

In Bright's disease, or other kidney trouble, there may be coma from what we call "uraemic poisoning." The poisons of the urine are absorbed by the blood. In turn the contaminated blood poisons the brain.

Some of the fevers, the contagious diseases, have coma as one of the symptoms. Malaria, too, has it.

Certain diseases, particularly diabetes, may have loss of consciousness as one of the complications. There is profound coma from which the patient cannot be aroused.

I have seen absolute and continued coma in hysteria. The temperature and pulse are normal but the victim is dead to the world for the time being.

Just what should be done if a member of the family falls into deep coma?

Of course it is difficult for a layman to know what to do in case of sudden illness. The easiest and perhaps the best thing to do is to send for the family doctor immediately. But in the meantime, you will not feel right unless something is done at once.

Make sure about the heart. If it is beating fairly well you need have no worry. Unless the face is blanched as it is in fainting, the head and shoulders should be raised. Place several pillows under them.

Cover the patient with a blanket after loosening the collar and the dress, too, if the victim is a woman. The idea is to maintain body warmth. A hot-water bottle or bag at the feet will be helpful, but take great care not to burn the unconscious patient.

Don't attempt to force any fluid down the throat. It may run into the windpipe and do great harm.

Pretty soon the doctor will come and he will assume the responsibility.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Addressing Envelopes

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When sending announcements of births, marriages, and so forth, should the envelope be addressed to the head of the house, as Mr. John Smith, or to Mr. and Mrs. John Smith? S. G.

TO Mr. and Mrs. John Smith.

Matter of Taste

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Kindly let me know if it would be wrong to go to the movies as my brother will be dead three months?

2. Could my mother wear black and white now?

MRS. R. D.

THIS seems a bit soon after the death of your brother, but if you feel that going to a matinee of the movies with one of your family or with a close friend will solace your spirit, I see no reason why you can't do it. But be sure of your extreme dignity.

2. Yes, if she wishes.

Correct Titles

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Which is the correct way to address a divorced woman—Mrs. John Smith or Mrs. Louise V. Smith? E. C. H.

NEITHER is the best way. The form accepted by those from whom we are supposed to take our best conventions is Mrs. Robinson Smith, the maiden name of Mrs. Smith having been Louise Robinson.

Mrs. John Smith is the correct form for a married woman or for a widow. Sometimes a divorced woman prefers the form of name containing her first name—Mrs. Louise V. Smith—but this is not nearly such good form as the union of the surname of her maiden name with the last name of her married name.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, January 8

THE planetary aspects for today, both by lunar direction and mutually, are disposed to thwart, obstruct and undo. The latter mainly by word of mouth and ill-temper, superinduced by gloom and despondency. By self rule and refraining from these dangers there may be some satisfaction in employment, but generally affairs should be postponed until a better mood reigns. Be careful with funds.

Those whose birthday it is are under the sway of many undermining influences during the year which may best be circumvented by close application to the affairs in hand, postponing new ventures and taking care not to nullify good by rash and impulsive words or gloomy attitudes. Poise and restraint may offset negative conditions.

A child born on this day should be given a very strict education in control of moods and general conduct. Depression and self-indulgence may incite to unruly and regrettable actions, unless a proper viewpoint be instilled and cultivated.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

Are Your "Intentions" Honorable?

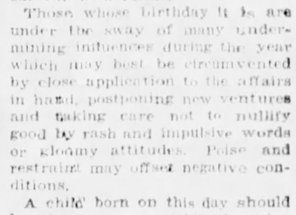
AWAY back in the quaint, old pre-war days, a woman used to want to know what a man's "intentions" were, before she would grant him any favors.

* * *

NOW, it's the man who demands to know what a WOMAN'S "intentions" are before he will give her any encouragement! Oh, dear me, yes!

* * *

The old-fashioned lover didn't HAVE any intentions. He just drifted into a love-affair, and thence into an engagement and a marriage—and could never tell you HOW it all happened, even after the honeymoon.



* * *

But the modern man's "intentions" are perfectly clear! He has every intention in the world of keeping OUT of marriage! Nothing is farther from his intentions than getting "sewed up" with Li'l ole Sweet Thing! And he makes no secret of the fact.

In these enlightened days, a man never drifts into a love-affair. He goes into it with his eyes wide open, his senses alert, and one foot in the crack of the door, poised for flight at the first sign of danger.

When he enters a girl's life, the first thing he does is mentally to mark all the exits and fire escapes. After that, he can start making love with his finger on his pulse and his eye on the "This Way Out" sign.

* * *

It is the girl who has to keep all her designs dark and camouflage her intentions, to pretend not to take a man seriously, when she is planning to TAKE HIM at any cost! To affect supreme scorn for the idea of marriage, when that is the one idea in her mind, and she has her bridesmaids all mentally lined-up.

* * *

It is the woman who dares not wear her "intentions" on her sleeve, but must hide them away in her bosom, and reassure timid man.

* * *

Even when her intentions are purely "companionate," she finds it safer to dilute them, and not to be too sweet and chummy. Because, how can a man be sure, in these prim-ordial times, that her intentions are HONORABLE? She may be pretending to be a good pal, and secretly plotting, all the time, to get him to the altar.

* * *

A man's "intentions" are the same today as they have always been since Paris played around with Helen—to AMUSE himself!

* * *

But he has become so marriage-shy, so woman-proof, so "CAGEY," that he can no longer be lured, coaxed or led blindfold to the altar; and it takes twice the ingenuity to back him into harness now, than it did in Mother's day. Every modern wedding is a masterpiece of strategy! That is why most brides look so fagged out, by the time they walk down the white-ribboned aisle!

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl :-: Story by Lloyd Mayer :-: By John Held, Jr.

LIKE THIS' LIKE THAT' COME ON DAD, INTO THE 'VARSITY' BUT YOU CANT SHAKE THIS STEP IN THOSE DOG KENNELS OH' DAD!
DADDY YOU MUST PUT YOUR WHOLE SOUL INTO THIS! YOU'LL NEED SOME SNOOTY PUMPS WITH BOWS HEP! HEP!
MOTHER SAYS THAT I'M TO BE YOUR PARTY ESCORT NOW. SO HOW MUCH WILL PUMPS SET ME BACK?
ONLY ABOUT TWENTY SMACKERS'
IN THAT CASE I'LL GET THESE SHOES FIXED AND ONLY PUT MY HALF-SOUL INTO THE DANCE!
HEY! HEY!

"My dear, I'm all-of-a-TWIT! I mean you've never SEEN anything so POSitively contorted as this vazue DANcing lesson I attempted FRANtically to give DADdy because I mean it was ACtually more FUN than a barrel of MONKeys to see him CApering oddly aBOUT trying FRENziedly to cope with the inTRIcities of the 'VARsity' and whatnot—you know the type! REALly, my dear, I NEARly had hysTERics because he had on great BOOTS or something which simply REFUSED to FUNCtion so I told him FRANKly he'd have to get some snooty PUMPS with BOWS if he wanted to COPE with the modern DANCE steps, which he's simply GOT to do at this point because MOTHer's conceived the quaint notion that he's to esCORT me to PARties from now on—can you BEAR it, my dear? Well, ANYways, we were LEAPing and CURVetting about and I was URGing Daddy to put his whole SOUL into it when he inquired how much these PUMP effects would set him back and, my dear, at that point ARAb appeared and said 'TWENty SMACKers,' whereupon DADdy CAUtiously remarked that he guessed he'd have alterATIons made in the SHOES he had at PRESent and would COMpromise by putting his HALF-soul into the dance! REALly, my dear, I think he's SIMply SCREAMing—I mean I ACtually DO!"

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

With Maria Kurenko, Mickey McKee and Grace Moore playing the leading roles in the theater of the air, there is a real treat for listeners tonight.

These great artists are not all. A special program from the New York Automobile Show, a Home Town Exhibit by the "Real Folks," a varied program by the Duo Disc Duo, a special concert of Spanish popular and old-time songs, a special arrangement of Fritz Kreisler's "Old Refrain," a request rendition of the "Viking Song," music from musical comedies and popular rhythms, an added attraction, "Classic Spain," some old English songs—and last, a complete program with a love theme. What could be sweeter?

Twist the dials to any local station tonight and you will pick up a good program. We mean an extra good program, for programs over Pittsburgh stations are most always "good."

Three nationally famous artists are the headliners. And good programs by orchestras, choruses and soloists are the general run this evening.

JACK LITTLE BACK

If it is possible to make a star program still more stellar, then we may write a few words more about good concerts from stations outside Pittsburgh.

At WLW, for instance, we will hear a great favorite at midnight. Who? Why, Little Jack Little, that great romancer of ethereal bliss.

Cadman's little known opera, "Shanewis," which means "The Robin Woman," will be broadcast by WEAF, WFAA, WHAS, WRC, WGR, WSAI and KSD at 10:30 o'clock. "Shanewis" is the story of a triple love affair. Shanewis is an Indian girl who falls in love with an American man who is engaged to a very fashionable girl. The whole story will be told over the air tonight.

Then, over to faithful WJZ for the 11 o'clock Slumber Music. As always, there is a good program.

The overture to Wallace's old opera, "Maritana," is the opening number. A selection from Friml's "Katinka" and selections from "Nell Gwyn" are scheduled. Kramer's "Silhouette" is another number.

Wall Street Quotations — Stocks Fluctuate

Bulls Make Progress; Big Mergers in Offing.

By B. C. FORBES

THE progress of the powerful bulls in establishing their favorite issues to new immediately after the modest setback had halted has already made some fractions Stocks today are on the average higher than they were when the year closed, a quite considerable profit in fact.

With coal in store so promptly back to six to eight and with the country flooded with ultra-cheap the 1929 business forecasts, conditions for the future would seem to favor the manipulators for the rise.

It may be, of course, however, that leading operators don't go beyond the early months of the year in their talk concerning their plans.

As for general business, the new year naturally has not yet brought any important new developments.

CHIEF interest in the immediate future continues to center in actual and prospective mergers of magnitude. The Rockefeller-Young alliance is a significant of what is aimed at in numerous of other industries, particularly the creation of one enterprise of outstanding influence. It may be that similar methods will be adopted by industries now in the throes, notably coal and textiles.

Far-reaching private developments loom that the huge consolidation plans now before the Federal Trade Commission will be considered much longer. Favorable action along these lines, coupled with a favorable supreme court decision in the O'Fallon valuation case, might easily bring excitement in railway stocks equaling that already witnessed in the various industrial and merchandising issues.

The latest record of commercial failures reflects the effect of consolidations upon many weak concerns. The number of failures last year, 23,842, is the largest yet recorded, but the liabilities involved were the lightest since 1920 with only two exceptions 1925 and 1926. The average liability was smaller than for any year since 1920 with the sole exception of 1926.

This reflects not only the greater competition caused by consolidations but doubtless reflects also the driving into bankruptcy of many small stores by chains. This economic trend is destined to continue. Before very long the competition will not be main streets, even small stores and independents, but between chains themselves.

THE year's dividend payments, compiled exclusively for this column, provide matter for cheerful reading than the bankruptcy statistics. A year ago the forecast was made in this column:

"Broadly speaking, dividend prospects are moderately rather than extraordinarily bright. The stronger companies should do well, but a good many weaker ones may encounter severe difficulty in earning reasonable returns for stockholders. In short, it promises to be a case of unto him that hath shall be given."

That is exactly what has happened, as the record of failures shows. Does not brought the largest number of favorable dividend announcements ever made in one month, 227.

This raised the total favorable announcements for the year to 1,468, compared with 1,179 in the previous year and 1023 in 1926.

1928	Inds.	P.U.	R.R.
Extra	271	50	28
Initial	44	14	5
Increased	130	23	6
Stock	120	23	3
Back	22	3	2
Resumed	22	3	2
Totals	1,014	116	44

One noticeable feature was the great increase (22%) in initial dividends disbursements by industrial companies over the 1927 showing.

Jan.	111	89	57	69	78
Feb.	98	81	52	64	42

Nov.	152	116	102	80	64
Dec.	227	206	184	147	104

UNFAVORABLE declared action was taken by only 142 boards of directors again this month in 1927.

WHAT are the dividend prospects for this year?

The general price level—outside of Wall Street—has remained extremely steady all through 1928, and is now only a few points above what it was at the beginning of 1927 and only a few points above the level of January, 1926. There is nothing in sight to suggest violent swings in commodity prices during the current 12 months, on the one hand. Industries are light but productive capacity is adequate to take care of all prospective increased demand.

LAST week's expansion in brokers' loans, $238,676,000, broke all the Federal reserve banks' records. In one week, 81 the New York Stock Exchange's compilation, raised the total to a new peak, $6,440,000,000, an expansion of fully $2,000,000,000 over 12 months ago and $3,000,000,000 over 1926. These figures carry a warning which Wall Street in its present mood chooses to ignore.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Influenced by severe cold weather in domestic winter wheat territory and by unexpected price gains of foreign markets, the wheat market opened strong at the start today. Failing to hold up, but later recovered somewhat. Corn started unchanged to ¼c advance and subsequently held near that level. Oats were firm. Provisions likewise tended upward.

At noon wheat was ¼c to ½c net higher, and corn ¼c to ¾c up.

Aside from some important domestic winter wheat sections having a snow blanket and with the ground water soaked prevalence of mild temperatures tended to a notably bullish influence. Chicago wheat receipts were light. Besides, the Liverpool market showed an advance, whereas a setback was looked for, and the amount of wheat afloat was more than a million bushels curtailed as compared with a week ago.

Particular attention to wheat traders was given to weather conditions throughout the winter wheat sections of Illinois and states farther east. Special basis of reports was to possible crop damage being caused by the fact that the widespread cold wave had followed rains or a light covering of much value to leading crop experts here as the situation had led to probable freezing of an ice pack which, if continued for any considerable time could easily result in smothering of wheat.

INCOME JUMPS FOR SPANG, CHALFANT

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

NOVEMBER was the biggest month of 1928 for Spang, Chalfant & Company. The final quarter of the year also exceeded the previous three-month periods in earnings, since it was marked by satisfactory prices as well as in operations averaging over 80 per cent of capacity.

Like most other pipe companies, Spang's earnings showed a continuous upward trend during the year. Net profit of $1,165,666 in the third quarter was equivalent to $1.31 a share on the 750,000 shares of common stock after deducting dividends on the preferred stock.

Earnings for the first nine months of the year were $2.28 a share. With further improvement shown at the close of the year it is safe to estimate that the annual report for 1928 will show profits considerably in excess of $3.70 a share.

The report will cover the first year of combined operations of the plants of Spang, Chalfant & Company and the Standard Seamless Tube Company. The companies were merged early in 1925.

PRESENT operations are at about 75 per cent of capacity. The year-end depression is still being felt, so that a few weeks more must elapse before any accurate estimate can be made of first-quarter business.

Although recent earnings would warrant the payment of dividends on the common stock, such a step is not considered likely at present. The company may find it advisable to embark on a large amount of construction and, in addition to this, the $10,000,000 funded debt will probably be retired before earnings will be turned over to stockholders. It has been the policy of other Hillman companies to eliminate the funded debt as rapidly as possible.

Spang's new $750,000 plant, which has just been started at Ambridge, will house several experimental operations. On the outcome of this research work, will depend the future policy on expansion and improvements.

THE methods used to compute the value of rights have often puzzled investors since this means of financing has become more common in the past few years.

In most states, corporations are required to offer new stock issues to stockholders in proportion to their old holdings. The offering price of the stock is usually below the market value.

The stockholders have their choice of either making the stock subscriptions themselves or of selling their rights to others. This practice makes it possible for holders who would get rights for fractional shares to sell or buy enough warrants to give them an even number of shares.

LET us take the case of a company whose stock is selling at 125 and assume that holders of each five shares have been offered right to purchase one share of additional stock at 100.

This means that the holder of five shares of stock would have six shares of stock after paying $100 into the company.

His original five shares had a total market value of $625. His six shares, after making the subscription, would be worth the original market price plus the amount he paid in. This would be $725. The equivalent market price of each of these six shares would be $120.83.

THE additional share he bought only cost him $100 so that the privilege extended by the company was worth $20.83. It is the practice of the New York Stock Exchange to consider a right the privilege given to one share of the original stock, not the right to buy an entire share of additional stock.

Thus the right given to each share of his holdings would be one-fifth this amount or $4.16. Fluctuations in stocks go by eighths so that each of his five rights would be quoted at about 4⅛.

Of course, as the market price of the original stock fluctuates before the stock of record date, the rights change proportionately in value. The actual market for the rights usually does not show much variation from the theoretical value since traders make a practice of watching for any spread to make arbitrage purchases or sales.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Market Irregular.

Irregularity characterized the movements of prices on the stock exchange today, with the list reflecting the fears of a return of high money rates on one hand and the hopes of much larger profits on high grade industrials and rail shares on the other. In the early market practically all stocks were at levels ranging from a point to 3 and 4 points under Saturday's closings. Incidentally, Saturday's final figures were the lowest of the week. While call money renewed at 7 per cent today and was reported available in large volume, the time money market showed very little change and accommodation over the next three months and up to six months was holding around 7½ per cent. On the face of this there was not much encouragement for the traders who lately saw their December statements carrying interest charges of 9 to 9½ per cent on debit balances and read the comments of some of the more pessimistic observers to the effect that January interest will be even higher. The trading element has stood up staunchly under the high interest rates of the past six months but there is perfectly little doubt as to whether they will hold on to their stocks very long with the cost of carrying them reaching such heights as shown on the December brokerage statements. However, there was no pronounced weakness in the market today and around noon there was a distinct improvement in the tone of some of the best grade rails and industrials. The volume of trading was under last week's average, a fact eliciting favorable comment from some market followers, who saw in the reduced offerings a failure of Saturday's rally against prices to bring out any important liquidation.

U. S. Loans Abroad.

High money rates which prevailed in the United States during most of 1928 failed to deter in any substantial degree the flow of capital abroad from this country. The Commerce Department calculated today that foreign securities issued and sold in the United States for 1928 amounted to $1,428,487,580, the highest ever recorded with the exception of the $1,592,505,760 marked up for 1927. At the same time, the higher level of interest rates had a sharp effect on the foreign lendings by this country, since the record showed that more than $1,000,000,000 of the 1928 total was absorbed in the first half of the year and the total American investments abroad during the last half of 1928 dropped to $379,000,000. Germany was the largest borrower from the United States in 1928 and was followed with taking $299,000,000 during the year, of this amount $47,000,000 was in government issues and the balance went to public utilities, manufacturing corporations and banking institutions. Denmark was the second largest borrower in Europe though Italy and Norway were also prominent in the figures.

Latin American Borrowings.

Latin-American countries, long important in the American financial field, were exceeded by Europe in 1928 borrowings. While about $81,000,000 actually went to government or government guaranteed issues, Brazil $78,245,000, all governmental; Columbia $74,158,000, all government or government guaranteed; Argentina, $53,000,000, nearly all governmental. It was notable that over two thirds of Argentina's financing constituted refunding of old loans. Peru took $17,500,000 in October in time the last of the States for the purpose of assisting in the consolidation of external debt, and $15,246,000 of this was refunding. Bolivia obtained $19,880,000 in 1928, largely for debt consolidation. Public improvements, highway extensions, city sewage systems, railroad construction and public utility installation featured the Latin-American loan schedule. Canadian financing in 1928 in the United States was second only to Germany's, the total being $240,000,000, of this, $167,000,000 represented issues by corporations, $12,000,000 provincial and municipal bond flotations and $31,000,000 Canadian railroad security issues.

South Penn Oil.

Income of South Penn Oil Company will be increased $2,000 a day as a result of 25 cents a barrel advance in posted price of Pennsylvania crude, of which the company produces about 8,000 barrels daily. In common with other wholly integrated oil companies, earnings of South Penn Oil in 1928 were substantially better than in the preceding year when the company reported net income of $1,727,774 after all charges, equal to $2.16 a share (par $25) on 800,000 shares of capital stock. They also exceeded 1926, a generally prosperous year for oil companies, when South Penn earned net income of $3,102,916 after charges, equal to $3.94 a share. Net profit reported for 1926 was greater than for any year since 1920. South Penn Oil purchases all crude oil run by New York Transit Company, Southwest Pennsylvania Pipe Lines and Eureka Pipe Lines, which it resells to refiners, adding its handling charge.

Average Steel Prices.

The steel industry should make a favorable showing in the current quarter if production holds up. Average price of the eight leading products is now $50.47 a ton, the highest since 1926. The average for the full year 1928 was $49.47 a ton, and 1927, $49.92 a ton. In the war period the average got as high as $91.01 a ton. The low average since the organization of the Steel Corporation was $33.11 reached in the full year 1911.

Brokers' Loans.

In some quarters it is felt that there will be a correction in the loan situation in the next two weeks. These interests continue to insist that the record gain was not actually justified by the advance in the market. One explanation is that many investors anticipated the receipt of the January 1 interest and dividend distributions and purchased stocks on margin in the last week of December. These buyers are expected to pay for their stock in the next week or 10 days, and this will tend to bring a reduction in loans.

American Car and Foundry.

American Car and Foundry will do better this year because of the expected improvement in equipment buying. During the period when railroad buying was negligible the management of the company expanded its activities along new lines. These are likely to show better results in the future, so that most observers consider the $6 a share dividend safe and believe that on basis of its yield the stock is selling out of line with many other industrials.

Wabash "A" Holders Successful.

Dividends on the preferred A stock of Wabash Railroad Company, which is noncumulative, must be paid before payments are made to common stockholders the United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in a decision by Judge Martin C. Manton and concurred in by Judge A. N. Hand. The effect of the decision is to require the company to pay the back dividends on the preferred A when earned before declaring dividends on the preferred B and common. It was charged that earnings for each fiscal year in which it was contended the A stock should have received dividends amounted to which no dividends or incomplete dividends were declared were retained and carried to surplus account. The surplus thus accumulated was alleged to be about $16,000,000 in excess of dividends declared.

Unredeemed Liberties.

Attention was again attracted to the government's statement in its report on outstanding public debt at the end of 1928, that $49,647,000 of the Third Liberty bonds were still outstanding unredeemed and $15,619,000 of the Second Liberty loans. These Third Liberties have now outlasted the redemption date by nearly four months, the Second Liberties by nearly 14 months. The common supposition that the failure of such bonds to come in for redemption was due to loss or destruction hardly holds in face of the returns, for even in December $5,224,000 of the Third Liberty bonds were turned in for redemption and $2,122,000 of the Second Liberties. The statement shows that there are still outstanding, of the Victory loan which was redeemed in the spring of 1923, as much as $2,943,600 bonds. At this distance of time, the figure is probably approaching the measure of bonds that were actually lost.

January Market Swings.

The highly irregular trend of last week's financial markets brought into discussion the question how January markets usually move. Somewhat to the surprise of investigators, it was found that the stock market seldom has scored any important change whatever in the month. The averages at the end of the month last year were only one and a half points lower than at the beginning. In 1927 and 1926 there was a net general decline of about one point. Curiously enough, the most rapid January advance in stocks during recent years occurred in 1924, when six months of reactionary markets and declining business were immediately ahead. It was found that the call money market invariably declined during the first week of the month, but went up again afterward. Last year call money fell from 5½ per cent to 3½ early in January; in 1927 it went from 4 to 3¼, in 1926 from 6 to 4, in 1925 from 3½ to 2. In most of those years the entire decline in call money rates was effected during the first week of the month.

Bonded indebtedness outstanding is $1,493,100. Unpaid coupons plus interest and other indebtedness $559,713 making total present indebtedness $2,052,813.

Decrease in Called Bonds.

In the first month of the new year the called issues showed an appreciable abatement in capital reconstruction with a total of about $200,000,000 under the second highest record of January a year ago. Corporation bonds and notes called for payment in advance of maturity in January, 1929, totaled $82,747,110, compared with $48,081,580 in December and with $283,543,800 in January, 1928. The current total comprises $7,2,029,960 in issues called in entirety and $10,707,150 of other issues called in part, generally to satisfy sinking fund requirements. The premiums range as high as 10 points. The largest corporate call was $34,930,500 7 per cent bonds of Andes Copper Mining Company, a large part of which will be converted into common stock.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 2 to 9 points under southern selling and liquidation which sent prices off to 19.71c for March and 19.31c for July. Trade buying and covering developed in sufficient volume around the 19.5-cent level for spring months to absorb the offerings, however the market soon became less active with prices showing rallies of several points from the lowest by the end of the first half hour. March sold up to 19.81c with active months generally selling back to about Saturday closing quotations. Cables from Liverpool made a fairly steady showing and advices said that local and Bombay liquidation there had been absorbed by trade calling and covering on the declines. According to these advices the demand for cotton cloths was well sustained, but the demand for yarns was limited.

The rallies from the opening decline met a renewal of liquidation and a little southern selling under which prices eased again. March sold off to 19.70c and July to 19.34c late in the morning with the general list showing net declines of about 9 to 12 points. No special news factor was mentioned in connection with the decline but there was some talk of probably unfavorable standard cloth statistics for December. The market at midday was within a point or two of the lowest.

Said Windgap road as a part of its system of improved highways, and shall maintain the same in good repair between the points herein mentioned, and the County shall forever be relieved of any responsibility for the maintenance of repair thereof.

EIGHTH: The City agrees to enact any ordinances which may be necessary to locate, relocate, open or widen, establish or re-establish the grade and curb lines of said Windgap road and to condemn or otherwise secure all private property necessary for this purpose.

NINTH: In case the City installs either water or sewer lines on the highway after the signing of this agreement, the City agrees to backfill the trench or trenches in a workmanlike manner and place any concrete over the same that may be required to reinforce the subgrade to permit the paving of the street. Where public service corporations or individuals open such trench, the City shall require said corporations or individuals to backfill the trenches in a workmanlike manner and provide any concrete necessary to reinforce the subgrade to permit the paving of the street. Should the City not require said corporations of individuals to pay for said work which shall be done by the City of Pittsburgh's forces, The City agrees to relieve the County of the responsibility for the failure of any part of the paving of the roadway or any structures occasioned by the subsidence of any trenches opened by the City, public service corporations or individuals, whether said trenches are opened before or after the paving of this highway by a contract or contracts let by Allegheny County.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF—The parties to this Agreement, each, pursuant to proper ordinances and resolutions authorizing the same, hereto affixed their respective seals, duly attested by their proper officers, the day and year first above written.

BUGS BAER Says

A man from Russia is gladly landed in New York.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

He went down to the wharf to meet this good-will ambassador from the junk yards.

He is made all of iron except his fingers. Which are iron too.

We listen to him talk and he reminds us of a lot of people.

He spoke. But didn't know what it meant.

He is also a scout of some certain visitors.

He can sit down in a chair.

But he cannot get up again without help.

He has a body squeak like a diver.

When the kids housemaid's knee they have to remove his freckles with a dandelion to fix it.

They claim that they are going to manufacture these robots by the millions and put them to work.

Make one a subway guard. And we will guarantee that he will not last five minutes.

He would make a fairly good office boy at a railroad information desk. Those boys give you more the same kind of a notable time that you would get from a robot.

By the way, or somewhere on that detour we have been getting robbed for years without knowing it.

Many a time the girl's old man has put the iron pan. And a specialty among traffic cops is the iron pan.

No robot could hold down a job in a department store around Christmas time. And what chance would one have of being a letter-carrier?

They have already installed an iron mind in the cigar stores. You drop in a coin, get some cigars and the iron man says, "Thanks you."

But he will not last long for he thanks just as heartily for a Canadian dime as he does for a plugged nickel.

Name Coast-to-Coast Highway for Coolidge

Before the five years of Calvin Coolidge's presidency come to a close, its major virtues ought to be given enduring recognition by the representatives of his people in both houses of Congress.

Under the leadership of President Coolidge, the American people have attained a spiritual, moral and physical strength unmatched in their history. They have not only done well by themselves, but out of their abundance they have given generously to the less fortunate the world around.

Respect abroad for men and things American has been enhanced and happiness at home has been expanded.

Mindful of the overwhelming responsibilities of his exalted office, Mr. Coolidge has steadfastly labored to perform the duties imposed upon him by the Constitution and the law, and no more diligent chief executive ever occupied the White House.

A New Englander by birth and rearing, he has proved himself to be an unconditional American in his aspirations and achievements. There has been no North, no South, no East, no West where national interests were involved. The people of each and every region have been encouraged by the quickening power of his example.

Because of the spirit of his leadership, because of the sum of his achievements, the soundness of his main policies, and the practical idealism that distinguished his program, the American people would gladly have re-elected President Coolidge for another four years.

Out of respect for the third term tradition, however, Mr. Coolidge refused a renomination and gave up a re-election, although no third term was really involved. There was a renunciation that revealed the power to which Mr. Coolidge owes so large a part of his success in public life. The power of moderation, of self-restraint, the power "to put the cause above the renown."

All these virtues of the man himself, these achievements of his leadership, and the quickening power of his example deserve to be marked permanently and in a way so plain that "all who run may read."

No better way suggests itself to us than by the naming for Calvin Coolidge of a coast-to-coast highway.

This truly national highway would be a new bond between the East and the West, a new tie between all the states.

It would offer to the American people a new symbol of their unity, and its benefits would be as broad as those which the presidency of Calvin Coolidge has bestowed upon his country.

Before the short session comes to an end Congress should authorize the building of such a highway to be named for Calvin Coolidge.

And from the Atlantic to the Pacific you will hear the voice of the American people speak in whole-hearted indorsement of the project.

Study to Find If Smoke Robs Us of Sun Benefit

Through the creation of a fellowship in Mellon Institute, as part of the study the end of which is to decrease the smoke evil, special attention is to be given to the general effect of murk on health. The research is to ascertain, if possible, the actual results of personal contact with smoke as well as contacts of which its presence deprives us. An attempt will be made to learn if smoke-filled atmosphere shuts off sun rays to such an extent that actinic radiation loses its power to cause chemical and physical reactions within us which medical men claim to be of benefit.

In this respect, the outcome of the study may be of world wide benefit, instead of merely local, since effect of actinic rays of the sun pathologically is a matter of much speculation. Some observers are not convinced that the sun rays are not too weak and too diffused to be of benefit as they reach the ordinary person swathed in clothing. So concentrated rays, artificially created, are employed. World attention to such employment of ray therapy was caused recently in the treatment of King George of England.

Yet we feel that the sunlight is beneficial and that deprivation of it is harmful. We know that we are healthier in the summer than in winter. We know that our spirits are higher on a bright day than on a gloomy one. So, it is not illogical to conclude that we are affected both physically and mentally by unobscured sunlight. It is not for economic reasons alone that we work in the daytime and sleep at night. It is a habit that has been forced by nature on all except nocturnal creatures.

These are some of the things on which we may receive additional light while we are trying to find a means of decreasing the smoke, which annoys us by its presence alone, to say nothing of the harm it does when we breathe it and the expense it causes often through making artificial illumination necessary at a time when daylight should suffice.

We're Rich in Wages, Compared to State

Data compiled by the statistician of the Chamber of Commerce from the report of the State Department of Internal Affairs for 1927 shows the average wage in Pittsburgh to have been $1,669, while that of the entire state was $1,450 and that of the county $1,661.

That is interesting. It shows that we are paid $219 more per year, on an average, than folks elsewhere in Pennsylvania. On a percentage basis the difference is considerable, sufficient to make us feel rich in comparison.

Another one of the reasons why Pittsburgh is great.

It Is Such a Nice Plan

How Much Will It Cost Uncle Sam?

This country consents to American experts assisting Europe to adjust the reparations question. Their job will be to settle the lump sum that Germany can and MUST pay, instead of paying the Allies $600,000,000, gold, per year indefinitely.

All children over 12 should know that the European plan is to have Germany issue bonds for her war debt and then persuade this country to buy the bonds.

If another war broke out, as big as the last, the bonds would be repudiated, OF NECESSITY, but by that time the Allies would have the money.

You read that IF, with the help of Americans, "an acceptable reparations plan could be devised, that would pave the way for Paris approval of a compact with us."

In other words, if we arrange to pay Germany's full debt to the Allies, they will hand part of it back to us, PERHAPS.

Tales That Are Told

Forewarned

SMITH was a quiet sort of chap who greatly appreciated the comforts of home life.

When he heard that his wife's mother was coming on an indefinite visit, he was aghast, and sat down to think things over.

"Here is a list of her favorite dishes," he said, producing a slip of paper.

"Yes, sir," said the cook.

The Long Bow

THE big-game hunter was yarn-spinning.

"I stumbled over a root and dropped my rifle," he said, "and as I got up I saw two lions waiting to spring on me. Without a second's hesitation I grabbed them both by the throat and—"

"But," protested the little chap in the corner, "I notice you've got only one arm. How could you grab both?"

"True," said the big-game man, "true, I've got only one arm, but in an emergency I forget all about a thing like that."

Not the Type

A FILM producer was looking out for a man to play the part of Lord Nelson.

One candidate for the part had mislaid all his photographs in a hurried move, so he bought a number of lithographs of the real Lord Nelson, added to them his own signature, and presented them to the producer.

Shortly after, they were returned with a letter.

"I am very sorry," wrote the film man, "but I cannot consider your application, as you are not quite the type I am looking for."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THE liquor in the speakensies in the big towns got pretty bad around New Year's, and some of it is still not so good, the boys say. They tell stories of how hard-boiled the bartenders in Chicago got.

There was a customer in one Chicago bar that bought a bottle that was labeled gin, and took it outside and drank it in his car. He come running in with his cigar in his hand, terrible nervous. He says to the bartender, "Say, that was gasoline you sold me instead of gin!"

"Well, then," says the bartender, hustling on about his work, "I reckon you better not light that cigar for an hour or two. Goodby, and keep away from the gas grate as you go out!"

Isn't It So?

Experience and responsibility make conservatives of us all.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

THIS is a true story. It may be the story of a miracle or it may be the story of a natural happening. I do not know. I only know that it is the story of Beauty—and Beauty is always a comfortable miracle.

I have a friend on whom a great grief fell. She bore it bravely and in time she taught herself to smile again, to talk, and go through all the old gestures. But there was no laughter in her heart, and no meaning, any more, in life.

Day after day it was like that.

Days that were like aimless, drifting ghosts with empty eyes,

If only she could be given a sign—the smallest sign that would put mystery and meaning into life again—then she could go on.

So she prayed. She had been of the Catholic faith, but religion, like everything else, had failed to give her comfort in those dreadful years. But now, in her extremity, she remembered "Little Saint Theresa," about whose sweet life and gentle death had grown the legend of the Shower of Roses.

She prayed, not with that staid reverence with which one is supposed to pray, but with that desperate urgency which only frantic mothers know.

"Little Flower," she cried, "help me! Give me a sign that my boy still lives or I cannot go on. Anything—anything."

She prayed, but I do not think she believed. It is so hard to believe when one has lost one's only son. And yet, somehow, life takes care of us whether we believe or not.

The next morning when my friend left her lonely house, there, on the pavement, lay a rose. But she lived in a land of roses, so perhaps there was nothing strange in that.

Yet the next day there was a rose again, blooming on her window sill at a season when no sensible rose thinks of blooming.

And the day after that a woman, who was almost a stranger to her, came blocks out of her way to leave a rose in her office.

And still another day, when she was about to take an aeroplane trip, there before the hangar, its petals glistening in the midst of the early dawn, lay a red rose.

So it goes—

Not every day, nor ever in the same place, but always, somewhere, comforting her sore heart, there is a rose.

She does not know whether Saint Theresa heard. She does not know why roses come. But—there they are. Waiting for her on dusty desks, on travel-stained highways—blooming softly against the darkness of the night. Always roses—in spite of killing frost. Always Beauty—in spite of ugliness and pain.

Roses surviving—

THE LATITUDE

By Garrett P. Serviss

"I follow your articles every night with the hope of finding something about how to find the latitude. I understand clearly how to find the longitude, but when it comes to the latitude, I am stuck. I know that the sun is up to 23 degrees north in summer and as far south in winter, but suppose you are 40, 50 or 60 degrees north when the sun is perpendicular to the Equator. How can you measure that? Moreover, how many miles are in a degree of longitude when the latitude is 40, 50, or 60?—Joseph Cinque, New York."

THE best way for you to measure your latitude approximately is by taking the height of the pole star above the horizon. That height equals the latitude of your place of observation. But the pole star revolves around the real pole at a distance of a little more than one degree, so that its height, or altitude, is a degree more than the latitude, if measured when the star is above the pole, and a degree less than the latitude when the star is below the pole. When the star is just east or west of pole, in its 24-hour circuit, the altitude of the star equals the latitude without addition or subtraction.

You can tell, roughly, at any time what the position of the pole star is with respect to the pole, by observing the constellation of the Great Dipper. A line drawn from the middle star in the "handle" of the Great Dipper straight to the pole star, passes over the true pole about one degree before it reaches the pole star. This will show you whether the star is above or below or to one side or the other of the pole. For careful measurement of the latitude you must, of course, use instruments, and find out with the aid of the American Ephemeris (the astronomer's almanac), just what the situation of the pole star is at the moment of observation.

If you want to observe the sun for latitude you must first know its declination north or south of the Equator. If it is just on the Equator, as in your question, then its altitude at noon above your horizon, subtracted from 90 degrees, will give you your latitude.

But the best way to look at this is to start with the fact that the angular distance of the zenith (point overhead) from the Equator, i. e., the declination of the zenith, is always equal to the latitude, just as is the height of the pole above the horizon. However, the Equator is not a visible object in the sky, and to ascertain its distance from the zenith at any point on the earth, you make your observations on the sun, which is never more than 23½ degrees in declination either north or south of the Equator. The Ephemeris gives you the sun's declination on any date.

Now, suppose that you should find the sun on a certain day at noon 50 degrees above the horizon, (i. e., the true horizon, such as you see at sea). Then its zenith distance must be 40 degrees, since the zenith is always 90 degrees from the horizon, and 90—50 equals 40. But on looking into the Ephemeris you find that the sun is on that day 20 degrees south of the Equator. Then, since the sun's observed distance from the zenith is 40 degrees, while at the same time it is 20 degrees below (south of) the Equator, the latter cannot be more than 40—20, i. e., degrees, from the zenith. But the distance between the zenith and the Equator, as measured at any place on the earth, is always equal to the latitude of that place. Hence your latitude is found to be 20 degrees north.

Suppose, however, that the declination of the sun had been 20 degrees north instead of 20 degrees south. Then since its observed zenith distance was 40 degrees, and the Equator was 20 degrees below it, the zenith distance of the Equator must have been 40 plus 20, equal to 60 degrees, and that would be your latitude.

Bible Passages

Praise the Lord

(Psalm 96.)

O sing unto the Lord a new song: sing unto the Lord, all the earth.

Sing unto the Lord, bless his name; shew forth his salvation from day to day.

For all the gods of the nations are idols; but the Lord made the heavens.

Honour and majesty are before him; strength and beauty are in his sanctuary.

Give unto the Lord, O ye kindreds of the people, give unto the Lord glory and strength.

Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name; bring an offering, and come into his courts.

O worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness; fear before him, all the earth.

Say among the heathen that the Lord reigneth; the world also shall be established that it shall not be moved: He shall judge the people righteously.

Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad; let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof.

Let the field be joyful, and all that is therein; then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice

Before the Lord: for he cometh, for he cometh to judge the earth: he shall judge the world with righteousness, and the people with his truth.

Little Waves

I LONG to go whure white ships sail,
Where great waves dash and die;
To face the tempest, brave the gale,
Fierce winds, waves mountain-high.

And I would see earth's fabled lands,
Its cities strange and far;
Would know the spell of desert sands,
Glimpse Bahr and Zanzibar.

But here the little waves that creep
Along the shining beach
Have lulled my longings all to sleep
With tender, whispering speech.

And at my feet these waves have cast,
Where mimic eddies whirl,
From out old ocean's caverns vast,
Its rarest gift, a pearl!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up to say good-bye to Frazier and Emma Hunt against their voyaging to London again to live for a time and to call on Gene Fowler, the editor. And a gentleman to whom I spoke harshly for brushing me with his car sneered: "Too bad about you, you poor sap!"

So to labor awhile and then away to join a merry gathering and Senator Pat Harrison there telling the most amusing Southern yarns I ever heard. And there were three I determined to remember and repeated them over and over, but an hour later they were gone.

To dinner with my wife and Frank Case, noticing a bulge in my pocket, inquired the cause and it was a slim volume called "Love," by William Lyon Phelps, and somehow I blushed like a schoolboy. Talked to Bert Lytle, whom I never met, and a personable fellow he is, too

The rich and blase young bloods in eternal quest of the super kick are now forming expeditions to dash to the North Pole. The fad was popularized by the polar pilgrimage of young Putnam, the publisher's son, and is the last word in expensive excitement chasing. The upkeep of a string of polo ponies or a yacht are cheap in comparison. Big sporting goods establishments have thrown open huge departments specializing in the outfitting of such journeys. Judging from the paraphernalia, the hardships must be terrible—sometimes we imagine the coffee in the thermos bottle might be actually tepid.

There is the story of a stripling who dropped around to be outfitted for the Far North. He desired something in a great coat with a hood, perhaps to match his slim mustache. And he wanted it lined with silk oilskin. The salesman insisted the best thermal qualities were preserved by wearing the fur, instead of oilskin next to the flesh. "Science has found," he said, "that with fur inside, the body is better able to withstand terrific cold." When that percolated, the young adventurer gave way to a fit of laughter, and when the clerk inquired the why of the merriment, he replied: "What a boob the buffalo is!"

In large railroad centers a school of instruction for Pullman porters is maintained. They are taught to manipulate the berth, make beds, hang up the little hammocks and some even learn to open train windows. An old-time Pullman porter tells me he tries to give every "graduate" the most profitable instruction of all. And that is never accept trifling sums right after performing some service. He advises them to refuse politely with: "O, never mind, thank you, sir. Just wait until the end of the trip." He says the average traveler calls a porter four times on a day's trip. Tipping piecemeal the total would be 40 cents. In refusing this the reward is likely to be a dollar.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

THE girl across the hall says she can't understand what they mean when they tell you, via radio, that you are invited to visit the "fur factory." She thought they got fur from animals.

She got a black velvet evening coat for Christmas, with white fur, which she thought came from a fox or a cat or something, but she went to the theater with a gentleman in black, and he had to send his overcoat and his suit to the cleaners next day. He was literally covered with white cat or fox hairs. And they stuck, electrically.

That may be the factory fur.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

HAVE you been embarrassed because of your impulsive manner of speech and action at certain times?

In your lodge, in your church, in other places, have you not sprung to your feet too soon or sat down before you should?

You knew that the time was coming for a certain action and you followed the impulse to carry it out.

No particular thought involved—just impulse.

This thoughtless action has handicapped you more or less all through your life.

You have been laughed at often and still you continue to be made ridiculous by such thoughtless actions.

Have you ever realized that this is a serious nervous condition?

You need better control over thought and action and movement.

For your brain functions just so jerkily and often causes you to make what others consider silly statements, when you really are sensible.
